TRY TO GET CONVICTION
Coolidge Sees Obligation to Prosecute Cases Against Republicans

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—The spectacle of a former member of the cabinet on trial for conspiracy and bribery is so unusual in American history that it is difficult to appraise the emotions of this community which contains the personnel of the government itself.

The first reaction, namely that the indictment of a high official impairs the good impression which the country has had of the integrity of public officials is, of course, still dominant. The thought is not so much of whether Albert B. Fall is guilty or innocent but whether the nation is going to assume that his activities were typical of the present regime.

The trial will have more effect on political opinion than all the speeches of the Democratic senators and campaigners. Until now the Doherty-Fall litigation has been so technical that it has not created any definite impressions on the minds of many people. There has grown up on the other hand, an anticipation that the principals be tried speedily on the criminal charges involved.

WORK FOR CONVICTION
President Coolidge and the department of justice in particular recognize the obligation to prosecute cases involving former Republican office-holders. The vigor of their prosecution has been lately increased because of a knowledge that the public will scrutinize the prosecution closely and to some extent with political spectacles. So the situation has developed to the point where the government administration will leave no stone unturned to get a conviction.

But irrespective of the verdict the publicity that will be given to the trial cannot but influence political currents. The Democrats had no opportunity in 1924 to shoot effective broadsides at the Coolidge administration. His action, nevertheless, in Mr. Coolidge's unbounded and his political strength at its height, while there has been no change in the popular view that Mr. Coolidge himself never would have countenanced any wrongdoing of the kind described in the oil cases and that he has indicated in the vigor of his action, nevertheless, the Republican party may suffer diminished prestige because both Mr. Fall and Mr. Daugherty occupied places of such prominence in its councils.

SANTA CLAUS ON ARRIVAL IN CITY

Hundreds of persons, grown-ups as well as children, greeted Santa Claus Wednesday afternoon upon his arrival in Appleton at 4:08 over the Chicago and Northwestern railroad. The depot platform was crowded long before the time scheduled for his arrival, and when the train steamed into the depot there was not much available room to be had near the cars.

With the aid of paper horns and other noise producers, Santa was given a rollicking welcome. The blaring tones of the horns and shouts of children was not all that was heard in the welcome, however, as the high school band was there to play inspiring tunes as Santa descended from the train.

After greeting his visitors, Santa was whisked away in a private car to the city hall where he was officially welcomed by Mayor Albert C. Rule, who presented the guest from the North Pole with the key to the city. Mayor Rule then introduced Santa to spectators gathered in front of the hall.

Lansing, Mich.—(AP)—A "book of rules," purporting to be the regulations and teachings laid down by the "King" Benjamin Purnell for the faithful of his House of David flock, is in the possession of the attorney general it was learned Wednesday. It was said to be the only document of its kind available. In its preamble the Israelites were cautioned to keep it well concealed, and not to carry it around in the pockets of clothing "which might easily be picked."

"Girls, I further warn you against pleasure seeking and selecting certain company." The female colonists are warned not to wander unnecessarily about the colony's amusement park. The members who sell peanuts or bark for concessions are instructed to do so in a "mild and gentle" voice and not too often. Also they are advised to stick to their own wares, that is, if they are selling peanuts not to shout for some other attraction.

Some of the rules follow: "If Benjamin puts anyone to a job of work, that must not be changed without Benjamin's sanction. "All persons engaged in selling must not give out anything without the money. "Tips must be handed in a separate wrapping. Your brothers and sisters may be working harder without the opportunity for tips. "Do not be seen leaning about upon each other. It is bad mark. And no walking about slowly with arms around each other as it is a bad mark before Gentiles. The world is watching Israel. "If you go to bed at 10 o'clock and rise at five that gives seven hours sleep, which is necessary for your own good. "Card playing is prohibited.

ARMY-NAVY DANCE
COMMITTEE FINDS BUNCH OF TROUBLE

Chicago—(AP)—New troubles added to the worries of the committee charged with selecting 1,700 girls to accompany cadets and Annapolis men to a dinner dance on the eve of Saturday's Army-Navy football game. The list of 1,700 was accompanied by discovery that a majority of the service men had made their own selection of partners.

Revisors of the list, plunged the committee into further difficulties Wednesday, for when Annapolis heard that hundreds of companions chosen for them would thus be disappointed, scores of middies filled last minute requests that their choices be ignored and that the committee use its own discretion.

As the list was announced Tuesday night more than 1,000 names were those supplied by the guests with every state represented.

STEVENS WINS COURT BATTLE WITH SIMPSON

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—Irvine L. Lenroot of Wisconsin, who was one of the Republican members of the senate oil committee, was called to the witness stand Wednesday in the Fall-Doherty conspiracy trial.

He was the first senator to be placed under oath. Much of the evidence to be used in the trial was unearthed by the committee of which Mr. Lenroot was a member.

With Senator Smoot of Utah, Lenroot visited Albert B. Fall at a hotel, while the inquiry was in progress, and urged him to tell the oil committee where he got the $100,000 with which he purchased ranch property in New Mexico, while he was a member of the cabinet. It subsequently was disclosed that the money came from Edward L. Doherty, lessee of the Elk Hills naval reserve, and a joint defendant with Fall in the conspiracy trial.

Before the senator took the stand the prosecution drew from several other witnesses the details of the payments made by Fall in the ranch deal. These included W. E. Harris and A. D. Brownfield who were concerned in the purchase.

Former Senator Pomeroy, for the government, first asked Lenroot whether he remembered that Harris and Brownfield had appeared before the oil committee and told of the purchase.

"Yes," he said. "DANIELS ON STAND. "Washington—(AP)—With his biggest artillery still in reserve, the prosecution in the Fall-Doherty oil conspiracy case continued Wednesday its tedious preliminary barrage of statistics and geological data concerned in the Elk Hills naval oil lease.

In the midst of the presentation of the documentary evidence, Joseph Daniels was called to the stand but occupied it but a minute. The former naval secretary said he was in the Wilson cabinet from March 4, 1913, to March 4, 1921.

"Were any leases to drill oil on the land?" he asked.

Small Disagreement Regarding Construction Methods and Plans

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—The report of the joint Canadian-American commission on the St. Lawrence waterway, made public Tuesday night at Ottawa, showed disagreement only to a small extent in recommendations as to construction methods and plans, in the opening of government officials who have studied the report.

"It was not by the American section that a full single-stage power development, in which all the practical head available in that portion of the river would be concentrated in one dam below Long Sault Rapids at the foot of Barnhart island. The Canadians proposed development of power at Ogden island, near Morrisburg, and at the ESTIMATE OF COST

An estimate of $423,600,000 for a channel for ocean going vessels from Lake Ontario to Montreal via the St. Lawrence was made by engineers. They also estimated a power development with an output of 2,619,000 horsepower per year.

FALL COOL UNDER FIRE FOR PART IN NAVAL OIL LEASES

Ex-Secretary of Interior Is Self-possessed in Facing U.
S. Court

Washington—There's one thing to be said for ex-Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall. He can stand punishment.

Ex-Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty nearly went to pieces under the prolonged strain of the investigation of his administration of the justice department and his subsequent trial, with ex-Alien Custodian Thomas W. Miller.

He left the Justice Department a plump, smiling, typical politician and then went rapidly down a hill until, at his trial, the prosecutor himself had to admit that he looked pitiful.

Fall, on the other hand, seemed on the verge of a breakdown when summoned before the Walsh committee in connection with the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills oil scandals.

But when he appeared before Justice Roach of the District of Columbia Supreme Court to plead not guilty, with E. L. Doheny, to a charge of conspiracy to defraud the government, he appeared in the pink of condition—about as unlike the popular idea of a "broken old man" as it's possible to imagine.

Doheny was bristling and defiant. Fall was cool and self-possessed. M. fable also. He shook hands with numerous acquaintances, posed for the cameraman, was polite to reporters and never was more at ease, seemingly, at his desk in the interior department or his seat in the United States senate.

Fall's defense may easily ruin him financially. It was hard to withhold a tribute of admiration for his nerve, under the circumstances.

ISN'T RICH MAN

Fall isn't a rich man. He has his ranch at Three Rivers, N. M., and he got $100,000 from Doheny. That's admitted, though it's denied that there was any impropriety in it.

The defense's account is that Fall and Doheny were old fellow prospectors, which is true unquestionably; that Doheny loaned Fall was in financial difficulties and that the former simply handed the $100,000 over, as "pardon" to "pardon," to be repaid or not, at Fall's convenience.

Presumably that placed him on Easy Street—assuming that nothing went wrong subsequently. But something else did go wrong. He's under one indictment with Doheny and under another one with Harry Sinclair.

A ranch and $100,000 won't go far toward defending him.

Much of the inspection is routine but suggestions for greater safety have been numerous. It was indicated.

From Lydia E. Pinkham to Her Great Granddaughter

Have you ever heard a grandmother say, "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? Why, my mother and I took that fifty years ago." In some families the fourth generation is learning the merit of this dependable medicine.

From the days of the polonaise to the days of the radio, mothers have given this famous remedy to their daughters. The happy schoolgirl of today, like the demure maiden of the 1870's, knows she can rely on Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

federal reserve bank, and one of the west's financial leaders.

Then he resigned to become president of a leading bank of Tulsa, Okla. The bank's capital was increased and apparently there was a bright future before it; then, abruptly, it fell into difficulties.

It became necessary to produce half a million dollars, overnight, to save the bank.

Without hesitating, Ramsey put up his private fortune. He saved the bank; but he left himself virtually penniless.

That was early this year. Borger, a typical western boom town, had just come into being here in the Texas Panhandle, where an oil boom of huge proportions was on. Borger was reputed the country's wickedest city—but also the city where fortunes might easily be made. Ramsey came to Borger, where 10,000 people were making a city out of a lonely prairie waste.

Many were making fortunes in Borger. But to do so one had to have either capital or luck. Ramsey had neither. So he set to work—at the bottom.

In a little shack, less than 20 feet frontage on a dusty business street, he started his bakery. He did most of the work himself and Mrs. Ramsey put on an apron and helped him.

Business improved. Soon Mrs. Ramsey did not need to help, as there was enough money to hire workers. Now Ramsey, too, has ceased manual labor and confines himself to directing the enterprise.

The shop's sales total about $400 a day, and are rising steadily.

Ramsey's return to financial stability, incidentally, has been accompanied by a taming process for the town of Borger. No longer is this the country's wickedest town. Vice, gambling and fighting have largely ceased; Borger is notable only for its prosperity.

Ramsey was offered the post of mayor, but was too busy to accept. He has however, let his associates elect him president of the Chamber of Commerce.

His friends see him well on the way to becoming again one of the west's financial leaders.

FEW MORE WORKERS HERE NOW THAN 3 YEARS AGO

The number of wage earners in Appleton has increased only slightly in the past two or three years, according to a canvass of manufacturing establishments completed here by the bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C. A copy of their report has been received here by the chamber of commerce.

Wage earners here in 1925 numbered approximately 2,531, while the corresponding figures for 1923 were 2,514, the report indicates.

Wages, however, have increased slightly more than $200,000, totaling $2,266,346 last year and $3,065,792 two years before that. There were 74 business establishments here in 1923, and two years later there was one less, according to the department's figures. The value of the products manufactured by the establishments here has risen more than $2,000,000, the 1923 value being $16,328,580 and the 1925 value $18,790,174.

Mrs. George Nixon and children, Clarke and Jayne, left for Galesville Wednesday where they will spend Thanksgiving with Mrs. Nixon's parents, Sen. and Mrs. E. F. Clarke.

Inventions Help Motorist To Use Auto All Winter

The day of jacking up the old "bus," removing the tires, the battery and any other part that might be damaged by exposure, has passed according to Appleton garage-men. Heated garages, non-freezing solutions for the radiator, wind shield wipers, plowed roads, improved heaters, closed model automobiles and many other inventions tend to increase the number of motorists who use their car the entire year. More Appleton car owners will use their automobiles this year than ever before, in the opinion of local garage-men.

Only a few years ago the first snow storm was a signal for car owners to run the car into the garage, get wooden blocks and hoist it in the air, remove the tires and the cover the body with blankets and quilts and forget they owned it until the general breezes of spring brought back memories of pleasant, motor trips.

Today the condition is changed. When the motorist buys a car, it must be a closed model. Nothing else will do because he intends to get his full value from his car by driving all year around.

He has the front and rear part of the car equipped with heaters that make the inside of the car comfortable in any kind of weather. An automatic wind shield wiper, that is operated by a vacuum from the motor, is installed and he can drive in the worst storm and still have a clear windshield to see the road. Anti-freeze solution is put into his radiator and battery and he need not fear a "frozen radiator."

When the first snow arrives and the motorist desires to drive to Milwaukee or any other city within 100 miles he says to the family, "Well the bus lines and the transportation companies will have the roads plowed and I'll be able to get through just fine."

The day is near, according to one garage-man, when all roads throughout the state will be kept open the entire year around, even during the worst storms. New snow removing devices and plows that will throw the snow far from the road will make

COAT LOST FROM EXPRESS WAGON FOUND ON STREET

Neenah—A fur coat, valued at $300, and consigned to Miss Leta French of Neenah, which was reported stolen from the wagon of the American Express company Tuesday afternoon, was found lying along the road at corner of E. Forest-ave and Ninth-st by August Gruenwald. It was returned Wednesday to the office of the Express company. It is thought that the box in which the coat was shipped from an Oshkosh furrier slipped off the level of boxes while the morning delivery of express was being made.

YEARLINGS LEAD INTERCLASS CAGE MEET; WIN TWICE

Victory Over Senior Team Gives Freshmen Perfect Percentage

Menasha—Seniors 6, Freshmen 14, Juniors 10, Sophomores 5.

These are the results of the first round of the high school interclass basketball tournament being held at the auditorium this week. As a result of these scores, the freshmen are leading the percentage column with two wins and no defeat. The Juniors and Sophomores are tied for second place with a win and a loss apiece, and the seniors bringing up the rear.

In the first game of the day the Fresh had an easy time taking the Seniors into camp by a 14 to 6 score. The shooting of Vetter, midjet Freshmen forward, coupled with the rest of his teammates' fight, proved too much for the Seniors. The Freshmen jumped into the lead soon after the opening whistle and continued so all the way.

The Junior-Sophomore game was without a doubt the hardest played so far this year. The Juniors finally won in the last quarter when they annexed three pretty baskets in rapid succession. The scoring of Godhardt was stopped cold by the clever guarding of Ryan, a lanky Junior. I was Ryan's clever work at stopping Godhardt with but one basket that undoubtedly the game for the Juniors.

SEYMOUR HIGH SCHOOL PRINCIPAL TAKEN ILL

FREE OFFER to the

Regardless of the strain, the sudden pull or unusual and unexpected exertion, this new invention retains the rupture safely, surely and comfortably—when the rupture has been healed properly, you can discard the appliance.

RUPTURED

Your Body Made Whole Again in a Safe, Clean, Comfortable, Scientific and Sensible Way

WE have perfected a new invention that does all that the old fashioned truss or appliance will do—and more—because it heals the rupture and frees you from truss wearing forever.

This is no idle statement. It has freed thousands from that torture and distress. We have their letters and the statements of doctors, themselves, to prove that after a comparatively short time, all signs of the rupture have disappeared. Hard work, strain and even violent athletics have failed to bring back the ruptured condition.

This new, scientific discovery costs even less than the average truss—yet in addition to retaining the rupture safely and surely, it heals as it retains.

This new discovery weighs less than any truss or appliance and, regardless of the position you assume, it is impossible for the rupture to come out.

Its pressure is so light and flexible that athletes, swimmers, dancers, have adopted this new invention; they are being freed from rupture dangers while it is retaining and healing their rupture with ease and comfort.

So sure are we that it will do this—we want you to try it free. Write today for full particulars of this free trial offer which will be sent you in a plain sealed envelope.

Do not submit to a dangerous, expensive operation until you have at least given this new way to health, a trial. Inquire about it and examine it. If you could hold it in your own hands—try it in your particular case—you would be convinced that it can heal your rupture. It has healed thousands and without doubt your case is similar to many of these.

And you can make this test absolutely free—write for free offer.

Not one single thing has been left out of consideration in its planning and perfecting. Cleanliness (so necessary if any physical ailment is to be healed) has been taken care of. It can be washed—just as you would wash your hands. There is no metal to corrode, no leather to become hard and uncomfortable and no cloth to become foul and irritating.

It is so planned that a constant stream of cool, fresh air is being injected under the soft, flesh-like surface. In this way, freedom of circulation is assured and freedom from irritation is made certain.

The success which has followed its use has been remarkable. Old men and boys, elderly women and young matrons, and thousands of babies, are included in the list of those positively healed, in this new way.

E. W. Morgan, 1425 W. 37th Street, Norfolk Va., writes: "I was ruptured severely, and had three operations performed on me. I also spent hundreds of dollars for worthless trusses. Nothing helped until I tried your appliance, which has entirely healed me. I am a yard brakeman and my work is hard: straining, setting brakes, running and jumping—and my rupture never shows the least sign."

This is but one out of thousands of people, prominent in their communities, who have been healed. They have been freed of truss wearing. If it will do this for others—why won't it do the same for you?

It retains as it heals. Holding the rupture, safely, surely, and with the greatest comfort—yet all the time working for your good. This is the history of this new discovery—so write today for the free offer.

RAILROAD IS SOLD
The sale at auction of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, which took place at Butte, Mont., is of great concern to three groups of citizens, employees of the company, stockholders and the traveling and shipping public. It is one of the important railway systems of the country, large sections of which are dependent upon it for transportation, to say nothing of the thousands of persons on its payroll and who own its shares. It passes to a reorganization group under the direction of Kuehn, Loeb and Company and the National City company of New York. The judge in whose court the sale was made set a minimum price of $122,500,000, and it was bid in at $140,000,000. The road is, of course, worth much more than this, but it is heavily encumbered.

The reorganization plan is complicated and its results can only be told in the future operation of the road. The amount of fixed interest bearing securities will be reduced by more than $227,000,000, and there will be a net reduction in the annual fixed interest charges on the funded debt of nearly $8,000,000. This is drawing off water with a sponge. Approximately $185,000,000 of obligations maturing in the next ten years are converted into long term bonds, interest on the major portion of which will be conditional on earnings. Assessments for the purpose of providing operating capital and paying government notes will be levied on both common and preferred stock, in the amount of approximately $70,000,000. Preferred stockholders will pay $28 per share, receiving for each share one share in the new corporation, and $24 of the principal amount of new fifty year 5 per cent gold mortgage bonds. Depositors of common stock will pay $32 per share, receiving one share of new stock for each share of old and $28 of the principal amount of the fifty year 5 per cent gold mortgage bonds. This will be hardship on many stockholders, but it will undoubtedly be to their advantage to take up the new stock and pay the assessments. Not only does it save them from being wiped out, but it may protect them in losses already sustained by reason of the fall in value of St. Paul stock.

Those who are engineering the reorganization plan claim it will bring about the complete financial rehabilitation of the road. This is a matter which ought to be figured out to a comparative certainty because of the known income of the road, its operating charges, fixed overhead, etc. Fixed charges are greatly reduced. The earnings should be materially increased under solvent operation, accompanied by greater efficiency and relative economy. It all depends upon whether the railroad is passing into the hands of bonafide operators, or whether it is a scheme of financiers to protect certain interests at the expense of others. The St. Paul is too valuable a property to be man-handled, and it is to be taken for granted the court has carefully scrutinized the plan of reorganization before approving the sale. We think there is no question but what the railroad is capable of marked development and profitable operation. If this should transpire it would be a God-send to employees of the company and of inestimable public benefit. The purchasers have taken on a trust in which they assume very large obligations and responsibilities to the extensive public and private interests concerned. Any attempt to pass lay opinion on the merits of the reorganization plan would obviously be premature.

IMPROVE GRADE CROSSINGS
It is announced from Madison that the State Highway Commission has taken up seriously the question of eliminating grade crossings, or making them more safe for autoists and pedestrians. An attempt is to be made to work the problem out through cooperation with the railroads. If this can be done in a satisfactory manner it will be the better way to proceed, but if it cannot be done it will be incumbent upon the state sooner or later to take the matter in hand itself and enact legislation for compulsory action.

There are numerous crossings throughout Wisconsin so dangerous in character that either overhead or under passages should be provided. There are other bad crossings which could be made less hazardous by cutting down embankments, changing the angle of the crossing or re-locating it, and these improvements should be made. New York state has taken up the question of eliminating grade crossings on a wholesale scale. The necessities may not be as great in Wisconsin as in New York, but our highways are extensively traveled and there are many crossings to protect. In the summer the tourist travel is exceedingly heavy and it will increase every year.

In the last three months there were 90 accidents on public crossings of steam roads in this state. That in itself is sufficient to demand steps to eliminate grade crossings or reduce their hazards. Practically all of the accidents are to automobiles. They present the real problem. The public will support the State Highway commission in any reasonable policy it may adopt, and it should be a positive and emphatic policy.

GOVERNMENT WINS POINT
The government won its first point in the prosecution of Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, and Edward L. Doheny, oil magnate, for conspiracy, when the court on its motion ordered the jurors locked up during the trial. The move was bitterly contested by the defense lawyers, who asserted it was a reflection on their honor. Questions of honor are of minor importance in a case of this kind when weighed against justice and a fair trial. The government is determined to see that nothing is to interfere with that, and it is right. Too many politically powerful and wealthy criminals have escaped the consequences of their acts to take chances.

The chief of Fall counsel asserted that for two years the defendants had been belabored in the press and abused by "tyrannical legislative authority." It would be better to say that for two years these alleged conspirators have been evading trial and have enjoyed the protection of all the technicalities that skilled lawyers could employ in their behalf. If they have been belabored because of the charges against them, they are deserving of that. Both bribery and conspiracy have been proved against them to the satisfaction of the American people. It does not require the formalities of a trial to convict them in the public mind. That has already been done, nor do we believe it is an injustice to them. The only question is whether they are to escape punishment or are to get their just deserts. The government and the court do well to leave no avenue or loophole open where it can be closed.

THE HIGH PEAKS OF PRIDE
Life gives us two or three sweet thrills we like to talk about.
The memory of the first home run fades not entirely out.
To every man comes soon or late one rapturous hour of fame.
When satisfaction with himself is his to boast and claim.
That night the lovely maiden blushes red and whispers "yes."
He walks the world on airy feet aglow with happiness.
And there's no doubt that he is proud and boastful I may say.
With every right to strut a bit upon his wedding day.
The next event which stirs his blood and fills his soul with joy
Is when the doctor says to him: "All's well, and it's a boy!"
Or let it be a little girl, the thrill is just the same.
There is a pride in fatherhood which nothing else can claim.
These three high peaks of perfect bliss already I have known.
And now the graybeards say to me one other I shall own.
"You'll boast as ne'er before," they say, "and strut the way we do
The day your son or daughter makes a grandpa out of you."

Health Talks

Noted Physician and Author
Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writer's names are never printed. READY RELIEF FOR RHEUMATISM
Although certain forms of chronic arthritis (long enduring joint inflammation) still baffle medical science and progress from bad to worse in spite of all efforts, it is fair to say that the majority of cases of so called "rheumatism" now are preventable or curable provided.
Provided the trouble is diagnosed in time.
In order to make a correct diagnosis of a case of "rheumatism" it is necessary to make a complete physical examination of the patient. For this the patient must remove all clothing. Examinations made through clothing are largely make believe, perfunctory, crude.
The object of such an examination is, of course, to determine what ails the patient. There are about a dozen common complaints jumbled under the name of "rheumatism," and for that reason it would be rather childish to imagine that a remedy or method of treatment could be of service in all cases.
Even such remedies as massage, rest, exercise or passive manipulation cannot be advantageously applied to all cases of "rheumatism" indiscriminately. It requires just as much technical knowledge or professional skill to employ massage or active or passive movements in the treatment of "rheumatism" as it does to prescribe medicines or apply surgical measures. Serious injury or irreparable deformity may be caused by the injudicious application of these remedies or methods of treatment which so many untrained folk think harmless to "try." One of the most pathetic pictures is the misguided sufferer from "rheumatism" drifting along from a little no better to slightly worse as he "tries" first this and now that remarkable rheumatism remedy or treatment, everything from uric acid eliminators to mud baths, from spinal titillation to drugless liniment, from rheumatism strings to St. Somebody's oil, from radium jugs to mail order diets.
Aside from analgesic or pain killer drugs, heat in one form or another probably offers the most reliable ready relief of ache or pain in the various complaints which masquerade as rheumatism.
By means of a special apparatus designed for the purpose it is now possible to make heat actually penetrate the tissues deeply. This deep heat is called diathermy, and it is produced in the bones or other deep regions from the resistance the tissues offer to the special type of electric current used. By this means, for the first time, heat penetrates the surface and not only relieves pain but brings about prompt recovery in some of the conditions which masquerade as "rheumatism," notably gonorrheal arthritis and subacromial and subdeltoid bursitis. The source of diathermy is a high frequency current of high voltage and low amperage—a remedy which may be as dangerous in non-medical hands as a scalpel in the hands of a good singer.
Old time doctors who still keep fractures immobilized for weeks on end have discovered that diathermy is of great service in preventing the stiffness and limitation of function that persists so long after such treatment. If they could free their minds from the obsolete ideas they might learn that daily massage, passive movements of the joints near the fracture and perhaps the omission of splints after the first week or two of most fractures will accomplish the desired result.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
What Ain't, Ain't
You claim there is no such thing as auto-intoxication, but I take it that each individual is a law unto himself in this matter. I know whenever . . . (F. V. J.)
Answer:—I make no claim, but merely assert the fact. A great many individuals believe they know precisely what you do. But as I have often tried to explain, that is the big trouble in Yankeeeland—so many people know so many things which "ain't" so. People who know they have "rheumatism" can't see the sense of denying that there is such a disease entity. I tried countless times to make such people understand that there is no doubt that numerous disease entities are dubbed "rheumatism," by the sufferers, their friends or their doctors, but nevertheless no doctor can define the disease he refers to by that name, in such a manner as to distinguish it from other painful or inflammatory diseases. No doctor can define "auto-intoxication" or identify the poison which victims of that obsession imagine is absorbed from the intestinal contents into the blood. It is merely an instance of a plausible theory, built upon vague conceptions of physiology and pathology, exploding when subjected to the light of actual knowledge. A great many such fond old notions have met such a fate as we have acquired exact knowledge. It is not strange that you believe you know you suffer from "auto-intoxication." Thousands of nostrum interests, regular and irregular healers, mineral water agents, real and fake food "authorities," and others exploiting the public have spent millions of dollars for the purpose of propagating that notion. Although physicians of scientific training have known for several years that the notion of "auto-intoxication" is erroneous and untenable, they have generally preserved the w. k. dignified silence for which the medical profession is more or less famous. So it is quite natural that you and a multitude of other laymen should cherish the idea of "auto-intoxication," and it is as natural that this vicious morbid notion should help to keep you sick.

LITERARY CONTROVERSY
I have been following with a good deal of amusement a controversy in a famous literary magazine between a New York writer, Isabel Paterson, and an English critic, Edward Davidson. Isabel Paterson wrote a book and Davidson reviewed it. It seems that he took the writer to task for putting the river Avon in the place of the Thames—or perhaps it was the other way round—and she came back with a savage article in which she intimated that Davidson was next thing to a moron because he misused the word "Fabian." She charged that he was under the mistaken notion that "Fabian" was originated by George Bernard Shaw. He came back with a long letter in which he admitted that his use of the word "Fabian" was open to that implication but that he had been in an awful rush when writing the review and did not have time to stop to think of the implication of the term. And she returns to the combat with sharp sarcasm making fun of him for practically losing his mind the moment he is under the necessity of writing something in a hurry.
That is as far as the controversy has gone perhaps next week the critic will have another installment, and then the writer can return with another broadside, and so on ad infinitum—and all over a misplaced word or two. It is extremely entertaining but the entertainment is at the expense of the writer and critic in about equal measure. They evidently do not understand how very funny they are.

Superior people like this writer and critic sometimes laugh at the ignorant outpourings of simple people who write to the newspapers about religion or evolution or government or any other subject of that kind. English novels are full of digs at ignorant people who write to "The Times." But when those same novelists and critics get into a controversy they are usually just as ridiculous as the simple citizens they satirize. Ignorant people who write ignorantly about religion and evolution and government at least have great subjects to discuss.
There is some dignity to their intention, no matter how ignorantly they may write. But think of becoming excited about a mistake in the use of a more river's name and pouring out yards of print about it. The magazines are entirely justified in printing it; nothing is so entertaining as to watch two people who take themselves ever so seriously lambast each other in print, no matter what the subject of their disagreement.
Controversies like that have been going on through all ages since literature began. Some of the most entertaining reading in literary history is the story of the quarrels of authors and critics. And the very greatest writers have often taken a hand in such things. It is hard for the non-literary person to understand how writers can become excited about things of that kind and how they can generate large supplies of hate ever more phrases that are sometimes hardly more than slips of the pen.
Bickerings of that kind were frequent in the days of Shakespeare and some of the greatest Elizabethan dramatists engaged in them from time to time. And everybody remembers how Pope and his contemporaries lambasted one another, often over matters that today seem almost completely unintelligible. And there has probably not been a generation of writers in the whole history of literature that did not produce many quarrels of that nature.
Occasionally such things even incite great literature. Much of the most delicious and the most savage satire of Dean Swift was due to unimportant bickerings of that general nature. For the most part, however, these literary quarrels pass with their times. They are the by-play of literature, something that seems to fill in the gaps of an author's life. There must necessarily be considerable time in a professional author's life when he cannot be

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

BY ARTHUR N. PACK
President, American Nature Ass'n.
Here are three rather distinct types of bird feet.
The crow's foot first of all is a perching foot. Three toes in front well-clawed are opposed by a fourth equally well-furnished. A bird with such a foot may not only sit in comfort on a limb, but he may jump from branch to branch grasping with sure grip his successive perches.
FOOT THAT SAUNTERS
He can, moreover, use them effectively on the ground, sauntering here and there in search of cutworm, or beetle, or even on occasion, on the newly-planted corn. In this particular type of foot it will be noted that the two outer toes are joined together for a part of their length.
A sharp eye may note this peculiarity in the print left by the birds in nearly fallen snow and by this alone may name the walker.
The pheasant's foot is typical of the gallinaceous bird, a walker of the highest order of skill.
Were it not that their owner had to fly occasionally to escape a swift-winged hawk, or to reach a roosting branch out of reach of prowling fox, it would be independent of wings, so well do those serviceable feet, backed by a pair of strong legs, carry their owner about his daily round of food-getting.
The strong claws are efficient instruments for scratching for food hidden in the mould. Such a pair of feet will seldom leave prints beside each other. They are used mainly for running or walking, rather than hopping. The hind toe, used only as a prop, is relatively insignificant; the spur is often present.

The feet of three birds are shown here. Above is a pair of crow's feet; in the center, a pheasant's, and below, a gull's.

STRONG CLAWS
A glance at the membrane between the bases of the toes of the gull's foot will show how, in all probability the webbed foot has been evolved. This is nearly or quite the highest type of swimming foot.
Opposed to the water, the feet spread to their fullest extent; when drawn forward, they fold and offer little resistance. Both this type of foot and that carried by the pheasant admit of perching on limb or rock, but their owners attempt little when so engaged.

See-Sawing On Broadway
By Gilbert Swan

New York. — The demand in the large department stores of Manhattan for salesfolk of "unusual personality" is proving a life saver person-winter for scores of actors out of work.
Not long ago the employment chief of one of the biggest stores conceived the bright idea that men and women with stage experience — particularly women — would prove an asset to any sales force if they would but project the stage smiles and bright talk over the counters as they had over the footlights.
Several theatrical agents were advised and told theatrical folk seeking work that here was a new way of keeping the wolf from the door. The more temperamental sneered, but many felt the actual pinch of necessity and volunteered. In one store I saw a former dancer in a vaudeville team, a light comedian and a couple of ingenues from "straight" acts.
It was told that the stage may be minus a number of second-rate actors for some time since steady work, even in shops, is not to be frowned upon by those accustomed to pounding the pavements months on end.
The "three-card monte" boys, once the fabulous figures of county fairs, are at it again right in the heart of the Times Square section, I am told.
It was the old fairground custom for the sharper conveniently to bend the corner of the "pay card" so that the victims would feel they had a sure thing within their reach. Of course they would put their money on the bent card — and, of course, they would lose.
In the modern Manhattan version of the grand-old-army-game the sharper tears off a corner of the card, having dexterously palmed the "pay card." I am told that $50 was cleaned up in a few moments of operation the other night. Yes, right here in wise old New York.
This is the way the girls from the "bunk towns" get the Broadway breaks:
The other evening one of the most successful musical shows on the big street awakened to find that the prima donna had walked out into the night. Walked right out and hadn't come back.
What to do? The management looked about. And up stepped one Era Briggs, who, I am told, came from the choir of a church in Horton, Kas. Horton, I am further told, boasts a flag pole, a library, a postoffice and everything. She was given her chance. Tomorrow her name will be in the big lights.

PREPARE PROGRAM FOR TAX MEETING HERE DECEMBER 9

Officers of Chambers of Commerce in State to Meet in Appleton

The program for the meeting of officers of chambers of commerce and trade organizations in the state to be held here on Tuesday, Dec. 9, is rapidly nearing completion, according to Hugh G. Corbett, chairman of the committee in charge. The meeting has been called to outline a recommendation on taxation.

Speakers already engaged are Prof. Ford MacGregor, secretary, League of Wisconsin Municipalities, and professor of city administration at the University of Wisconsin, and E. M. Clauson, treasurer of the Wisconsin Manufacturers' Co. The former will discuss taxes from the city's angle and the latter from the state's angle.

Mayor of all principal cities in the state, presidents and secretaries of chambers of commerce, and officers of various trade organizations will be invited to attend, according to Mr. Corbett.

The tax meeting will be held in the afternoon. The mid-winter meeting of the Wisconsin Association of Commercial Secretaries will be held here on the morning of the same day.

This gathering was proposed at the recent national meeting of commercial organization secretaries in Pittsburgh, Penn., and the committee in charge also was appointed at that time. Besides Mr. Corbett, the general secretaries of the chambers of commerce at Madison and Waukesha are on the committee.

Brothers of Racine, Meet as Foes in Army-Navy Game Saturday

Racine—(UP)—A Racine couple, with a son and daughter, will probably be the most interested spectators at the Army-Navy battle in Chicago Saturday, and there's a reason. Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Mr. and Mrs. Korn and son, Howard, and a daughter will occupy seats on the 50 yard line. Mr. Korn has announced that he is neutral but has his own ideas about who will be the victor.

Charles and Arthur Korn where both students at the St. Johns Military academy where they distinguished themselves on the gridiron. Howard, a younger brother, is now a student at the academy and also a grider of considerable note, he also expects to attend either West Point or Annapolis. Besides being a football player, Howard holds the title of golf champion at the military school.

COMPLIMENT MILITARY TRAINING ORGANIZATION

County chairmen, county committeemen and medical examiners of the northeastern district of the Wisconsin Citizens Military Training Camp organization received letters Wednesday from Captain Frank L. Whittacker of Green Bay, congratulating them on their work in enrolling boys in the camps the last year. Outagamie-co is one of seven in the district and P. O. Kelcher is county chairman. Capt. Whittacker, a regular army officer, is procurement officer for the C. M. T. C. for the district.

Capt. Whittacker's letter contains an extract from a letter he received from the Chief of Staff, 101st Division, U. S. Army, Milwaukee, in charge of the C. M. T. C. enrollment for the state for the last year. The extract reads:

"Your district last year, as a whole, made the best record of any as to C. M. T. C. enrollment, all counties having made a good showing."

Capt. Whittacker's letter to the county men says:

"This comment is a source of great satisfaction to this office and it is desired that this credit be given to the county chairmen, county committeemen and medical examiners, through whose efforts this fine showing was due."

HI-Y CLUB WILL MEET ON WEDNESDAY EVENING

ALDERMEN ARE WEARING NEW GOLD BADGES

Appleton's 12 aldermen are wearing new gold plated badges.

The silver plated star, former insignia of an alderman, has been replaced by a shield bearing the seal of Wisconsin. An eagle, with spread wings, is perched on top of the shield. The shield also bears the word "Alderman," the name of the alderman and the number of the ward he represents.

The new insignia was selected several weeks ago by the finance committee. At the expiration of his term or when an alderman is defeated for reelection, he will be permitted to keep his shield, and a new one will be purchased for the incoming alderman, the committee has ruled. Formerly the badge was passed on from one alderman to the next.

No new insignia has been selected for the mayor. While John Goodland, Jr., was mayor, the council purchased a gold star for him, but this emblem remains with the office.

U. S. MELTING POT SLOW IN BOILING

Twenty-three Foreign Language Newspapers Printed in New York

New York—(UP)—America may be the melting pot of the peoples of the world but at least in adoption of its language, the Americanization process is slow, if it can be gauged by the one million persons who read foreign language newspapers in New York.

Within sight of the immigrant station at Ellis Island, where the melting pot first begins to boil, there are published daily newspapers in 23 different tongues. Their combined circulation indicates that one out of every six New Yorkers reads a paper printed in a foreign language.

With one out of three persons in New York Jewish, according to the latest estimates, the seven Jewish dailies alone reach more than half the foreign press clientele in every issue.

Four-foreign language dailies and a total of 193 foreign publications comes from the city's presses every month. The Italians have 34 publications of their own; the Jewish organs run second with 27.

COUNTY PATROLMEN ARE KEEPING HIGHWAYS OPEN

With the county road patrolman working wherever the necessity arises, although only on a part-time schedule, state and county trunk highways are being kept open for traffic. A minimum amount of travel difficulty is being assured through the fact that in spots where the road has become particularly "lumpy" a grader is put into action as soon as possible, it was reported at the county highway commission office Tuesday.

So far, it was stated, snow has not been sufficiently deep in any one section to cause great inconvenience and neither has it drifted enough to impede traffic to any extent.

Reports from adjoining counties also indicate that similar methods are being pursued to guarantee the possibility of through traffic.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE MEETS

The maintenance committee of the Appleton school board held a special meeting Tuesday morning for the purpose of inspecting the city schools. The problem of snow removal also was discussed.

Second All-school Dance of Year Will Be Held Friday, Dec. 17

The second student council all-school party will be given at Appleton high school Friday evening, Dec. 17, it was decided at the meeting of the council with the principal of the school Monday afternoon. Committee to be appointed by the council president, Robert Mitchell, will begin plans for the affair after Thanksgiving. Only students will be guests.

Members of the council planned to help the administration in combating the problem of tardiness and absence in the school. An editorial will be written and signed by the council and published in the Talisman issue of Nov. 20, and posters will be prepared and hung about the building. Chronic offenders will have personal interviews with the council members, it was said.

Accounts of the Student Council meetings will be posted on the bulletin board and will be printed in the Talisman hereafter, in order that other students will know what their representative body is doing for the school. Plans were made for conducting a model council meeting at a general assembly meeting at the high school within the next few weeks.

EDITORS ASK SCHOOL BODY TO SEE WORK

A 10-page edition of the Pleasant Corners school newspaper, town of Greenville, district 5, the most pretentious rural school paper to leave the "press" this year was received at the office of County Superintendent A. G. Meating this week.

The subject matter runs a gamut from a school yell to a "lead editorial" in which school board members of the district are cordially invited to visit the school and "see what we are doing."

Varying to some degree from other papers published in the rural districts the Greenville editorial staff has taken a method sometimes used by National magazines of "press-agenting" through rousing reader interest in what is going to appear in later editions.

A timely editorial on Thanksgiving—its meaning—is one of the principal features of the paper.

EPIDEMIC DANGER SCOFFED AT HERE

Contagious Diseases Not Alarming in Outagamie Rural Districts

Contagious disease throughout the county, according to County Nurse Marie Klein, regardless of the fact that nearby counties are reporting a daily increase of diphtheria, is about normal for this time of year.

Measles and scarlet fever, Miss Klein pointed out, are more prevalent in Outagamie-co than other disease of a contagious nature, only a scattering few cases of diphtheria have been brought to official notice.

Quarantine signs are being placed wherever necessary and danger of a serious epidemic of any nature is not thought imminent.

More difficulty is being found in keeping mild cases of measles under observation than in any of the more serious phases of fall and winter illnesses, it was stated.

NEW HIGHWAY BODY TO ORGANIZE SOON

Road Commission Members May Get Together Monday for Detail Work

An organization meeting of the virtually new county highway committee will probably called for next Monday, it was reported Tuesday.

Three new members will be officially seated, a chairman for the ensuing year elected, and affairs of the old committee adjusted to fit in with the 1927 work, it was stated.

It is expected that a tremendous amount of business will be transacted on account of a large volume of routine to be disposed of before the new committee can jettison its plans with that of the old.

Life's Sunny Afternoon

"Grow old along with me, The best is yet to be."

WITH her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grandchildren, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

Thousands of women of middle age say they owe their vigor and health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Those who have learned through their own experience the merit of this dependable medicine are enthusiastic in recommending it to their friends and neighbors.

A woman in Nebraska was troubled with headaches for fifteen years. She writes, "I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have felt my health steadily improving. Today, after taking your medicine for almost a year and a half, I believe I can say the headaches have left me for it is seven months since I had the last one. I am continuing the Vegetable Compound. I am feeling fine now."

This woman is the mother of six children with a large house to care for. Her name is MRS. ADOLPH BRATKE, 4316 South 13th St., South Omaha, Nebraska.

TURKEY, CRANBERRY SAUCE, PUMPKIN PIE 'NEVERYTHING FOR A REAL OLD FASHIONED THANKSGIVING DINNER

BY SISTER MARY
WHEN we stop and think that for over three hundred years the turkey has been the accepted bird to provide the annual feast of thanksgiving we concede the justice of his importance.

However, turkey alone can't make a Thanksgiving dinner, even if the bird is traditional with the day. Chicken pie usually was served by the New Englanders with turkey, but thinking and eating either one or the other, but not both should be served. Of course if a turkey party must be planned, and one turkey is not large enough and two cost too much, the chicken pie will prove an ideal "stretch" since it's quite as traditional as turkey itself.

When we're speaking about turkeys, keep in mind that an eight to ten-pound hen turkey makes the best dinner. It may be necessary to place your order for the turkey several weeks in advance.

PLAN FAR IN ADVANCE
If your dinner is to be the success every hostess wants, every detail should be considered and planned far in advance of the day of the feast. Then when it's time to cook the dinner you can devote all your thought and energy to the actual cooking and serving of the meal.

Look over your stock of staples and replenish such things as salt and flour and sugar at least a week in advance. Be sure the table linen is all in readiness. Polish the silver the first of the week if you are afraid things may pile up later.

When you plan your table decorations choose something that will not give the table a crowded appearance, and keep the centerpiece low. A wide, low bowl of fruit and nuts is colorful and can be used as a last course for the dinner.

CLEAR TOMATO SOUP
Two cups tomato juice, 4 cups brown stock, 1 green pepper, 1 medium-sized onion, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 3 tablespoons butter, 1/2 teaspoon tabasco sauce, 1 tablespoon fresh grated horseradish, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.

Melt butter and add onion and pepper finely minced. Saute until tender and a golden brown. Add tomato juice and stock and simmer 20 minutes. Strain and reheat with salt, pepper and tabasco sauce. When ready to serve add horseradish and Worcestershire sauce.

The stock can be real stock strained and clarified or it can be made with bouillon cubes.

- Here is a regular "old time" menu for your Thanksgiving Day dinner. While simple, it is interesting enough to give any cook ample opportunity to display her skill.
- |                         |                    |
|-------------------------|--------------------|
| CLEAR TOMATO SOUP       | CHEESE CRACKERS    |
| CHICKEN STUFFING        | ROAST TURKEY       |
| MASHED POTATOES         | CREAMED ONIONS     |
| SQUASHED CROQUETTES     |                    |
| MIXED PICKLES           | OLIVES             |

| NEW ENGLAND PUMPKIN PIE |                    |
| CIDER FRAPPE            | CRISP COOKIES      |
| COFFEE                  | FRUIT              |

And now the turkey! Some of us feel that we must serve the potted bird on this one day of the year even if we go without dessert for a month.

A TURKEY'S "POINTS"
Keep in mind the "points" of a good turkey, plump with firm flesh and clear white skin, carotene at the end of the breast bone soft and pliable and the breast itself broad and plump. The "drumsticks" should be smooth and firm to the touch, with a dark line of color.

As soon as the turkey comes from the market remove it from its wrapping. Take out the giblets which the butcher will have dropped loosely inside the bird for delivery. Put the giblets in a bowl of cold salted water and let stand while cleaning the turkey. In case the gizzard is not opened make a gash through the thickest part down to the sack. Then peel the outside away from the inner sack. Discard the sack.

Now hold the turkey over a flame, turning it so that all the hairs on the skin will be singed off. Look the turkey over carefully and remove any pin feathers that may have escaped plucking. Be sure that the oil sack, which lies just above the tail, is carefully cut out.

Rub the turkey inside with salt and then thoroughly rinse it all out. Scrape the outside with the blunt edge of a case-knife taking care not to break the skin, and keeping the bird under water. Scrub well with palm of the hand and wash under running water.

Rinse the giblets in clear cold water. Put both the turkey and giblets in the refrigerator until needed.

CHESTNUT STUFFING
One quart large chestnuts, 1/2 pound ham, 3 cups stale bread crumbs, 4 tablespoons melted butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon onion juice, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 2 eggs. Shell and blanch chestnuts. Cook until tender in boiling salted water, drain and put through a potato ricer. Cover ham with cold water and simmer until tender. Drain and mince. Combine chestnuts, ham, bread crumbs, onion juice, salt, pepper, parsley and butter. Mix lightly with a fork and add yolks of eggs well beaten. Mix lightly but thoroughly with fork and add whites of eggs beaten until stiff. Mix and stuff turkey with mixture.

To stuff a turkey put the force-meats by spoonfuls through the incision in the neck and sew the skin firmly in place. Then fill the body cavity with the stuffing and sew the skin with a soft strong cord. The turkey is now ready for trussing.

To truss a turkey draw the thighs close to the body and hold them by inserting a skewer under the middle joint on the other side. Cross drumsticks and let it come out on the middle joint on the other side. Cross drumsticks and tie securely with a stout cord. Fasten to tail. Place wings close to body with tips twisted back and hold them with a second skewer forced through wings and body. Draw the neck skin under the back and sew. Cross the string holding the drumsticks to the tail and draw it around each end of the lower skewer. Again cross string and draw it around each end of upper skewer. The string securely in a knot and cut off end.

READY FOR THE OVEN
The turkey is now ready for the oven. Cover the breast with a paste made of 1-3 cup butter and 1/4 cup flour rubbed together. Rub the rest of the body lightly with creamed butter and dust with flour. Place the bird, breast down, on the rack of the roaster and put into a hot oven. As soon as the turkey begins to brown reduce heat and roast for four hours.

After the first half hour of roasting the process should be slow. Even with a covered roaster the turkey requires occasional basting to prevent dryness. Baste with 1/2 cup butter melted in 1/2 cup hot water. Sprinkle well with salt and pepper when heat is reduced.

Cook the giblets in boiling water until tender. Use the stock for gravy. Put giblets through the food chopper and add to gravy before serving.

When the turkey is tender lift to a large hot platter and remove skewers and strings. Be sure the platter is big enough to hold not only the turkey but the meat and joints as they are carved. And another thing—don't embarrass the carver by excessive garnishing. A glorious brown turkey is a picture in itself, so why paint the lily?

Cranberry conserve is rather unusual as the recipe follows.

CRANBERRY CONSERVE
One quart cranberries, 3 oranges, 1 cup seeded raisins, sugar, water. Wash and pick over berries. Put into a large sauce pan with about two cups of boiling water and cook until berries are broken. They should cook in about fifteen minutes. Measure the mixture and add three cups of sugar to four cups of fruit. Add raisins, juice of oranges and the rind of oranges cut in thin strips. Simmer until mixture is thick and pour into hot sterilized jelly glasses.

Make the conserve the week before Thanksgiving so it will be ready to serve when needed.

The squash should be cooked and made into croquettes the day before Thanksgiving.

The pumpkin should be baked and sliced ready to be combined with milk and eggs on Tuesday.

The brown bread should be baked on Tuesday or Wednesday. It can be reheated if wanted warm for the feast.

Let the salad be deliciously crisp lettuce or endive with a simple French dressing.

Use your favorite cookie recipe but make the cookies very thin and in small shapes.

You will like the cider frappe to finish the dinner and it will have just the right cooling touch a hearty dinner needs.

CIDER FRAPPE
One quart sweet cider, 1 1/2 cups orange juice, 1/2 cup lemon juice, 1 1/2 cups sugar, 1 1/2 tablespoons gelatin, 1/2 cup cold water.

Soften gelatin in cold water and dissolve over hot water. Combine cider and fruit juices and let stand with sugar until sugar is dissolved. Stir in dissolved gelatin and turn into a mold. Freeze with stirring or pack in two parts ice and one part salt and let stand two hours, scraping down the sides of the mold frequently during freezing. Serve in sherbet glasses.

The recipes given with the menu are planned for eight persons.

Faith soothed her, but her heart was heavy with misery and doubt.

"Oh, I forgot to tell you," Cherry was sparkling again. "Selma and Frances and I've worked it all out. All three of you are to dress to represent flowers. You're to wear golden yellow taffeta—all the dresses are to be taffeta, made in Colonial period design—and you're to be a California poppy, and Selma's to be a sweet pea, in palest orchid and flesh color, and Frances—she's such a lovely silvery blonde, is to be a cornflower, that heavenly cornflower shade of taffeta.

"Your bouquets will be of the flowers you represent, combined with hies of the valley. You can wear the Hensick red chiffon to Selma's party she's giving me a week before the wedding. Frances is going to give one too. Isn't everyone lovely to me, Faith? All except that snake in the grass, Bob Hathaway!" (Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.)

So Cappy then suggested quick, a plan that he thought very sleek. Said he, "Well, see the farmer's son and saw the fruit in two." "That's great," they told him with a smile, "the saw's out by the old wood pile. If you'll just run and get it, it's exactly what we'll do."

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

"Come into my room," Faith's cold lips formed the words in a whisper.

When she had closed the door of her room, Faith slumped against it, one cold hand gripping the knob, the other frozen around the two letters which Cherry had brought her.

"I—I don't understand," she whispered. "Not Bob? Bob couldn't do a thing like that?"

Cherry planted her tense, angry little body so close to Faith that she could feel the younger girl's hot breath on her face. "Well, it didn't take you half a second to see what I saw," Cherry flamed at her. "The sneaking blackmailer! Look at those letters! Look at the one addressed to Dad, with his return address in the upper left-hand corner. There, look at this one addressed to me!"

"You saw it instantly! You admit it. It's the identical envelope, exactly the same blocking of the address—all stenographers very a little bit in their ways of arranging addresses, if it's no more than a space or two. Compare these letters!"

The stenographer who wrote both—and I love me, they were typed by the same person—has her tabulator set for addressing envelopes. There's exactly the same white space from the edge of the envelope to the beginning of the address, top and side. And the same typewriter was used. That L on both—the top is worn half off and is unaged with red, and the top of the M on Myrtle Street is tinged with red on each envelope. She—or he, if Bob is a stenographer and typed those letters—top half of it red, for typing figures. An architect would undoubtedly use a red and black ribbon, because half of his dictating would be figures. You can see all that can't be!"

"I saw that the two envelopes were identical, except for the return address on Dad's." Faith admitted slowly, her eyes black with pain. "Of course I didn't know just how I was convinced of it, at a glance, but everything you point out is true. Oh, God!" she moaned, passing a hand dazedly over her eyes. "But I won't believe it's Bob!"

"He knew all about Albert Ellington, didn't he? Cherry demanded to really. "And he saw me in Chris Wiley's arms at George Pruitt's party that night. Didn't he come running to your for sympathy. Didn't he?" She was shaking an angry finger in Faith's pale, drawn face.

"Yes," Faith groaned. "Yes, he did. I told you. Don't lose control of yourself like that, Cherry. How many of these blackmailing letters have you received?"

"This is the fourth," Cherry began to pace up and down the room, her high French heels being an angry staccato on the polished, uncarpeted floor. "All exactly alike on the outside—two of them in red, one of them delivered by Western Union messenger and one lying on the floor beside my bed when I woke up on Thursday morning."

"Why didn't you tell me—show them to me?"

"I was sick of worrying you with my troubles," Cherry's voice was softened a little. "And—and I broke my promise to show that first one to Ralph. But I'll show him all of them, and tell him what his precious nephew is doing to me! Bob Hathaway's going to pay for this, Faith! I don't care if you are in love with him!"

"Don't do that yet, Cherry," Faith begged pitifully. "I know there's some explanation. Bob couldn't have done it—I'd stake my life on that."

"You make me tired!" Cherry whirled to face her sister, her golden eyes wide and hot with anger. "Crazy about a man that just hands you out a crumb of petting now and then! If he's in love with you, why doesn't he say so? Why hasn't he been near you since that Saturday night? He hasn't even called you up, I bet!"

"You can't blame him very much for staying away from this house," Faith spoke with a sorry attempt at a spirited rejoinder, but Cherry's words had touched the sorest spot in her heart. "That Saturday night wasn't very pleasant for him, after that scene you made at the Marlboro Country Club. And you must remember that I took your part—as I always do—when he was telling me how you tried to rope him in. Have you read this letter?" she asked suddenly, turning the envelope addressed to Cherry between her cold fingers.

"No," Cherry snatched the envelope from Faith's hand and ripped it open. "Just like the others, except that it's shorter. There's only one line, but I'd rather read it to you, Faith." Her cheeks were flaming, and her eyes dropped suddenly. "It's a rotten lie, anyway."

"Then it can't really hurt you," Faith soothed her, but her heart was heavy with misery and doubt.

"Well, they can't scare me!" Cherry mashed the letter down into the pocket of her suit and flung up her bright, curly head defiantly. "There's only a month between now and the wedding, and I'm going through with it."

"Why, they'd think they'd forced me out, if I backed out now! Well, am I too deep to give it up for any reason in the world? Isn't Madame Denise a wonder, Faith? I can't believe all these gorgeous clothes are for me!"

"Have Frances Warren and Selma Pruitt decided on their dresses?" Faith asked, glad of a chance to think of something else than Bob Hathaway. "I really think that lipstick red chiffon is too loud for a wedding, honey. The other girls couldn't possibly get colors that wouldn't clash with it."

"Oh, I forgot to tell you," Cherry was sparkling again. "Selma and Frances and I've worked it all out. All three of you are to dress to represent flowers. You're to wear golden yellow taffeta—all the dresses are to be taffeta, made in Colonial period design—and you're to be a California poppy, and Selma's to be a sweet pea, in palest orchid and flesh color, and Frances—she's such a lovely silvery blonde, is to be a cornflower, that heavenly cornflower shade of taffeta.

Here's A Woman That Keep A Secret She's Social Service Advisor To Governor

BY VIRGINIA SWAIN
NEW YORK — Tammany hates her—Al Smith swears by her—and Mrs. Henry Moskowitz smiles and holds her tongue. She's the only woman in public life who honestly doesn't want to talk about her own importance.

Advisor, confidant, friend to the biggest man in New York politics, Belle Moskowitz proves that a woman can not only keep one secret, but hundreds—can be the power behind the throne without letting a single word escape to reveal her presence there.

Beneath those calm grey eyes of hers are secrets which for Tammany and other political factions would give any price. Yet she says, deprecatingly, "I am only social service advisor to the governor."

Actually, though, she is many other things. Every day she goes to work as publicity director for the Democratic State Committee. Nearly every week she goes to Albany to confer with the governor. Often she represents him in labor disputes or on committees. Some of her time is spent in research work for his speeches.

NEGLECTS "THE BOYS"
Those who know Al Smith believe that it is no coincidence that he has steadily risen in power since his first meeting with this shrewd woman back in his first campaign of 1918. For many years, Tammany has felt its Al slipping away. Their old champion has come to think more and more of welfare legislation and matters of government, and less and less about the "boys at the hall."

That is why Tammany hates Belle Moskowitz. It realizes also that any plans Governor Smith may have for national conquest will rest to a large extent upon the guidance and aid of this mysterious, taciturn Jewish woman.

With a quiet smile she tells the story of their first meeting "I had promised to ask Mr. Smith to speak before the Women's University Club in the fall of 1918. I stumbled over my request to him and met a rather curt reply."

One suspected "Al" dreaded a crowd of high hat women.

"He did come and, under pressure, made one of the best speeches of his career," she concludes, triumphantly.

Soon after this meeting, Mrs. Moskowitz was asked to organize Democratic women for Smith. She was drawn gradually deeper and deeper into the councils of the party, until it became evident that scarcely any Democratic man statesman had more power than Mrs. Moskowitz.

"I've met opposition on account of my sex," she says. "But not from the governor. He deals with people as human beings, regardless of sex. My greatest contribution to him has been my knowledge of actual conditions in New York."

"I am in politics only to further the causes I believe in—better housing and recreation, protection of public health, and so forth. If I couldn't help these causes by my job here, I'd give up the job tomorrow."

"I have no ambitions for office-holding myself."

Mrs. Moskowitz has successfully blended politics with wit and maternity. In her personal life, as in her public career, social service has had a strong influence. She met her husband through it, and she harmonized her maternal duties with her philanthropic work.

When, as 18-year-old Belle Lindner, she began her work at the Educational Alliance of New York, Henry Moskowitz, though only a boy, was head of the Madison House Settlement, around the corner.

CARED FOR CHILDREN
There, too, she met her first husband, Charles Isaacs, an architect. They were married in 1902, and were the parents of three children. In 1911, Mr. Isaacs died, leaving his wife to support the family—an obligation which she fulfilled gallantly, in spite of poverty.

They say no business woman can rear children properly unless she has money for the best nurses. Well, I had the money, because I went out and earned it. I paid for my children's care somehow, when I had no money for anything else."

Her marriage to Dr. Henry Moskowitz was in 1911. Her three children, Carlos, Josef and Miriam, are grown now.

Belle Moskowitz has resolutely kept in the background, not even admitting power. But it is certain that Al Smith's enemies—and some of his friends in Tammany—hate her. And Tammany does not waste energy hating the weak.

MRS. HENRY MOSKOWITZ

INDUSTRIAL VALUE BELOW PAR

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
THE school board of a large American city employed efficiency experts to figure out a way of reducing expenses in maintaining their school buildings.

The efficiency engineers went over the buildings with pad and pencil and issued their ultimatum. "Cleaning the buildings should be costing a hundred thousand dollars a year less," said they.

"The school board called the janitors up on the carpet. They did not say 'Off with their heads.' They said 'Off with their helpers!' But they meant, to be more definite, 'Off with their male helpers.'"

Then to soften the blow, for every one knows that the major-don't do in charge of a large building cannot do all the window cleaning and wash-sifting himself, the school board said, "You may employ women, good sirs. You can get the same service with the help of charwomen; we shall raise your salaries, and we shall save one hundred thousand dollars a year."

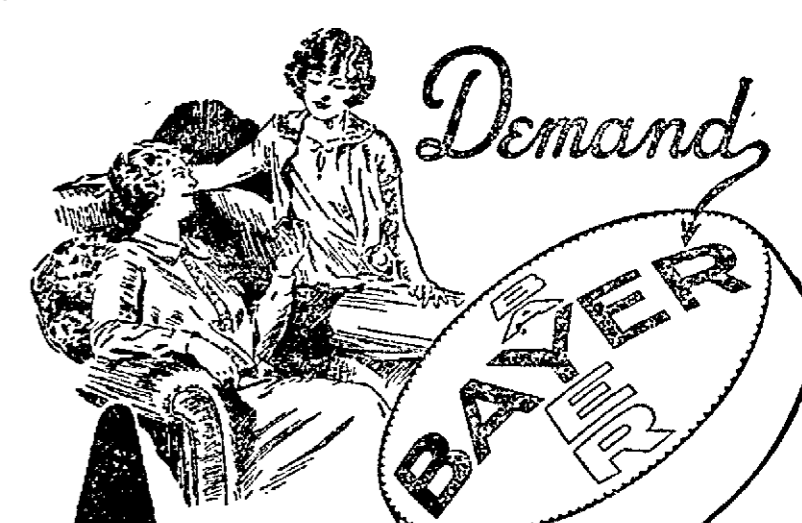

Now then, what is the answer? One cannot say that the women will be paid less because they render less service. The work is there to be done, must be done, and will be done, and women will do it.

It must be that most of the women who will be employed are foreign-born. Perhaps and perhaps not. It may be that the men who have been dismissed are monthly more capable. But in this case it must appear to be a case of labor and not of brains.

It is the old economic question of men earning more than women for the same work. Men have families. So have women. Most of the charwomen I have employed are supporters of families—in many cases of husbands also.

To pay by piece instead of time has been talked of as a solution. Pay for value received, be it from man or woman. Yet where it has been tried it is still difficult to maintain an equal scale.

I wonder how many ages it will take to get the Chinese prejudice out of the masculine make-up, concerning the industrial value of women.

CHRISTIAN SERVICE HAS IMMENSE OPPORTUNITIES

Christian service offers greater opportunities to the student than any other field of activity, in the opinion of Prof. Elmer Leslie of the school of Theology of Boston university, who spoke to Lawrence college students at the Monday convocation services. Prof. Leslie held conferences with students interested in the ministry and religious education during the day.

The speaker believed that students generally wanted to do "something hard, something enjoyable and something dealing creatively and helpfully with people," and he maintained that these would be provided in a life of Christian service.

Women Tell

Others how this new hygienic pad discards easily as tissue — no laundry

BECAUSE one woman so advises others, and because doctors so urge, most women are deserting the old-time "sanitary pad" for a new and better way.

Eight in 10 better-class women now use "KOTEX."

Discards as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

Five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads.

Deodorizes, thus ending ALL danger of offending.

Obtainable at all drug and department stores simply by saying "KOTEX." You ask for it without hesitancy.

Package of 12 costs only a few cents. Proves old ways a needless risk. In fairness to yourself, try it.

PURCHASE OF PARK IS AUTHORIZED BY COUNCIL ON MONDAY

Klein's Park in Third Ward Becomes Property of Kaukauna City

Kaukauna—Purchase of Klein's park in the Third ward was authorized by the city council Tuesday evening in the municipal administration building. The price for the 14 acres is $8,700. The original price, including 18 lots, was $10,000, but the council decided it would put the lots in trust and allow a group of citizens to buy this land at $100 an acre with the provision that any amount greater than the deal they realize through the sale of these lots will be returned to the South Side park fund. This amounted to $1,800 for all the lots, thus reducing the purchase price of the park proper to $8,700. The entire land, including the lots, was part of the estate of Mr. and Mrs. James Devoy and Mrs. Susan Montague of Minneapolis, former residents of this city. They gave the city an option on the property provided they would buy the 18 lots which are scattered throughout the ward. The council felt it did not want to buy the lots and as it wanted the park land, the above plan seemed to be the only way out.

Kaukauna—Kaukauna's tax rate was increased from $33 per thousand to $35 per thousand at a meeting of the city council Tuesday evening in the municipal administration building. This is an increase of $2 for every thousand dollars of assessed property. The tax levy is $13,740.55 more than in 1925 as a result of $27,750.33 additional county-state taxes over 1925 and $2,002 additional school appropriations, totaling an additional $24,752.33. The general city taxes were cut from $138,761.79 to $127,720.00, thus making it necessary to raise an only additional $13,740.55. In the total school tax, the high school, Nicolet and Park schools received an additional $1,558.00 while the general school tax provided for an additional $648, thus making a total of $2,206 more. The vocational school fund was cut from $12,335 to $11,831, so the total increase for school is $502. An additional $5,000 is provided in the 1926 budget for loans from banks. ## WOMAN LOSES CASE AGAINST CICERO

Mrs. Bertha Wenzlaff Unsuccessful in Attempt to collect $1,800

After 2-days trial before a jury, a verdict against the plaintiff in the case of Bertha Wenzlaff against town of Cicero was returned in less than an hour of deliberation late Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Wenzlaff was seeking to collect approximately $1,800 from the town for alleged services she had given her son as a nurse, and for his upkeep. The son, Arnold, the plaintiff declared is an invalid and she demanded the sum sought on the grounds that the town had agreed to pay her if she kept him at home and gave him the care required in his case.

Although several questions were embodied in the verdict submitted for the jury's signatures, a "No" on the facts sufficed.

Municipal Judge Theodore Berg presided in circuit court.

NEWSPAPER MAN SCORES OIL CASE PRINCIPALS

Milwaukee—(P)—If the government fails in its case against former Secretary of the Interior Albert Bacon Fall and E. L. Doheny, multi-millionaire oil magnate, the public will be ready to believe that it is only the little fellow who must be good, said Douglas W. Swiggett, a member of The Milwaukee Journal's editorial staff, in a talk over WHAD today.

"After four years, the former secretary of the interior is to be tried, together with the oil magnate, E. L. Doheny, for conspiracy to defraud the government. Almost endless delays have been obtained to give these men opportunity to prepare their cases. The government will have to take its chance," Mr. Swiggett said, "in making a jury believe that Doheny's loan of $100,000 conveyed to Fall in the famous 'little black satchel' was an improper influence."

"How good a chance would an ordinary citizen have who undertook to make a profit of even a small amount by government favor?" Mr. Swiggett inquired.

SEEK INFORMATION ABOUT EARLY APPLETON SETTLER

A letter received by Postmaster William H. Zuchlik at the Appleton postoffice from Mrs. J. V. Lawler, 1508 N. Seventy-first, Terre Haute, Ind., requests information regarding the whereabouts of Charles Lamphear whose father was an early settler of Appleton. In the early sixties, according to the letter, Charles Lamphear's father was deputy sheriff and lived in the jail at the same time he was bookkeeper in a local store. Mr. Lamphear's mother was a sister of the inquirer's father. Mrs. Lawler's sister, Belle Mae Gregor of Canton, Ohio, lived with the Lamphears in Appleton for two years while she attended Lawrence college. Mrs. Mac Gregor is an old woman now and is anxious to know if Charles Lamphear is still living. Mrs. Lawler also asks for the names of some of the old citizens who would like to correspond with her. Anyone possessing the desired information or wishing to get in touch with Mrs. Lawler is asked to see Mr. Zuchlik.

STAGE And SCREEN

"RAGGEDY ROSE"

The most notable comeback of the year is that of Miss Mabel Normand in a new Hal Roach-Pathe comedy entitled "Raggedy Rose" which will be one of the features of the Thanksgiving program at the Elite Theatre. In the type of role she made famous, she returns after a retirement of several seasons.

Miss Normand needs no more introduction to screen followers than do motion pictures themselves. Ever since the early days when she and Roscoe Arluckie were known as "Fatty and Mabel," she has enjoyed tremendous popularity. As a matter of fact, she is one of the institutions of the screen.

That is, she is one of the traditions of Blimond and there is not a picture-goer on earth who doesn't know her, who is not thoroughly familiar with her delightful comedy methods, or who does not welcome every opportunity to see her in a new picture.

For the last few years Miss Normand has come to the screen all too infrequently. For this reason, the picture fans owe Hal Roach a debt of gratitude, for it was he who finally persuaded Mrs. Normand to return in the type of picture that won for her her greatest fame.

The main feature of this program will be the first showing in the state of Wisconsin of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture "Tin Hats," the douch-boy drama featuring Conrad Nagel and Claire Windsor, supported by George E. Cooper, Bert Roach and Tom O'Brien.

"THE NIGHT CRY"

Classic of the Screen at the New Bijou Thursday and Friday, shows Rin-Tin-Tin, the famous dog star, in his biggest and best role, and the picture itself is thrilling and forceful.

June Marlow gives a delightful performance as a plucky little pioneer wife, eager to save Rin-Tin, the shepherd dog, from the villain, (Gayne Whitman), John Harron plays her husband, little Mary Miller their baby and the cast also includes Don Alvarado and Heinie Conklin.

Tin-Tin-Tin, in the picture, has been falsely accused and persecuted for plundering the flocks of sheep, and the Martin family tries to protect him from the wrath of the other shepherds. The dog knows that a condor has been responsible and pursues the bird of prey in vain. Finally in a thrilling fight with this culture, he saves the Martin baby from its talons and vindicates himself.

Herman Raymaker has made an excellent production from the story by Phil Klein and Edward Meagher, telling the homely tale of a pioneer family in swift, dramatic action.

"The Night Cry" is decidedly worth while.

"WE'RE IN THE NAVY NOW" BRINGS BERRYHATON TEAM TOGETHER

Adolph Menjou may remain Uncle Sam's suave sophisticate, Harold Lloyd should keep on as America's perennial playboy, Jack Holt can continue upholding the honor of the West, Bebe Daniels may well stay on as Hollywood's joyful tomboy but — as for Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton—let them continue to be the screen's funniest comedy team, in films similar to 1926's fun fest, "Behind the Front."

Paramount officials realized the public demand for a sequel to the first "sunny side of the war" picture and cast about for another good story. Monty Brice, adaptor of the earlier production, handed in an original script, which upon being read caused everyone to fall into convulsions of laughter. It's name? "We're in the Navy Now."

And so—the picture which arrives at the Fischer's Appleton theatre next Monday traces the lives of a prize fighter and his manager from the day they innocently join the Navy till their final return to the ring. If you don't believe it to be chuck full of shrieks, listen to one typical situation.

After having been rapped by a nurse aboard ship, the boys are asked to take her over the side in a rowboat. They do this and she suddenly vanishes into thin air. Lost in a fog, their boat is cut in two by an immense dreadnaught. Picked up by rescuers, they tell of their adventures with a whole fleet of submarines. Then—but why continue? "We're in the Navy Now" is really a life-saver in a sea of inferior productions.

Also Victor Kephart of W. H. T. Chicago and added features.

"TIGER" BILL SMITH PLACES JOHNSTON ON ALL-STAR TEAM

Kaukauna Grid Mentor Gives Marinette Three Places On Valley Crew

Electric City Coach Has Seen Every Fox Valley Squad in Action

Note—The following all-star valley Fox river valley high school grid team was picked exclusively for the Appleton Post-Crescent by Coach William "Tiger" Bill Smith, mentor of Kaukauna high school's wonder teams of the last few years. Coach Smith has seen every valley conference team in action this year as well as others of the valley. He is well qualified to pick a team to represent the valley. Since coming to Kaukauna from Lawrence, where he was a three-sport star, Smith has placed the Electric City on the map athletically, turning out some of the greatest grid and cage squads ever developed at Kaukauna during the last few years. Both squads were feared by all foes and defeated strong opponents in the valley conference, composed of much larger cities.

ALL-VALLEY GRID TEAM
End—Quinn, W. Green Bay.
Tackle—Mitsinski, Kaukauna.
Guard—Aspatore, Fond du Lac.
Center—Becker, E. Green Bay.
Guard—Van Sistine, W. DePere.
Tackle—Kohlman, Marinette.
End—Hansen, Marinette.
Quarterback—Herber, W. Green Bay.
Halfback—Pinsgar, Marinette.
Fullback—Siewers, Oshkosh.
Fullback—Johnston, Appleton.

Kaukauna—Coach William "Tiger" Smith of Kaukauna high school in picking an all-valley football team awarded three positions to Marinette, two to West Green Bay, and one to each of the following: Kaukauna, Fond du Lac, East Green Bay, West DePere, Appleton and Oshkosh. Smith went outside the Fox River Valley Athletic conference to fill two positions because he believed these two teams, Miskin of Kaukauna and Van Sistine of West DePere, to be deserving of them. The team he picked is an all-around team capable of playing a good game under any condition of weather and each man is an excellent athlete.

Marinette and West Green Bay, having the two strongest football teams in the valley, received nearly half the positions on the all-valley team. In places where Smith found several men of like ability and he thought they were above the average run of players in the valley he switched the men to make room for them on the team. An illustration of this is the case of Mitsinski, Kohlman and Aspatore. All three men are tackles, but in Smith's opinion there was no choice between them and he also believed them to be high above the average player in the valley. To get all three men on the team he switched Aspatore from a tackle position to that of guard and placed the other two men at the tackle positions.

For Captain, Coach named Quinn of West Green Bay because he believed him to be the best player developed by the valley football coaches during this football season. Smith thought Quinn the outstanding star of the conference. Coach Smith having seen practically all of these men in action believes them capable of standing up against any other team. In giving the reasons for his selections the "Tiger" says, "I was asked to pick an All-Valley team. This is my choice. My selections probably will be surprising because I have included two players of the smaller schools in the valley on my first team. In answer to this I might say that men from some of the larger schools who have played against these men admit their worth and also many of the bigger schools could have made room for these men on their rosters. "Without a doubt, Quinn of West Green Bay is the outstanding player of the valley as well as the best end. West Green Bay's rating this year can be largely contributed to the work of Quinn and Herber—without them the team would only have been mediocre. For his team mate, I have selected Hansen of Marinette. Both men are big and can handle a tackle on offense very nicely. Both can receive forward passes extremely well and opposing teams who wished to rain anything at all did not think it the best of football strategy to run them out. For my tackles I have chosen Kohlman of

LAWRENCE CAGERS START YEAR WITH CHICAGO MAROONS

Blues Play Big Ten Squad at Chicago in Opening Battle on Dec. 28

Lawrence college's first chance to make use of its recently established full-year freshman rule will come on the night of Dec. 28 when the 1927 Blue cage squad will open its season by invading Chicago for a game with the University of Chicago's Big Ten contenders. Chicago won only four games and lost eight last year in the Big Ten race, but every practically game was lost by a margin of one, two or three points. This year the Maroons have almost a complete squad from last winter back and look like a contender for the conference title.

The Blue cagers will start practice next week at the end of the interclass meet which starts Monday. The first workout of the lettermen plus a squad chosen from those who do well in the class meet will be Friday, Dec. 3, according to Coach George Christof. Lawrence has five vets back in harness and with their aid expects a good chance of whipping Chicago as the Big Ten teams never round into form until the regular season starts, preferring to use the first games as practices to work on the weak points and develop several promising men.

Two years ago, the Blue Midwest champions desired to schedule Big Ten competition and it was said by experts, including Badger coaches, that the Wisconsin team of that year would have been easy meat for the strong Denmen. Last year Big Ten schools refused to schedule Lawrence because of the half-year freshman rule here which allowed freshmen to become eligible for sports at the end of the first half of the school year. In the conference the full one-year rule is adhered to. This year Lawrence adopted the rule in the hope of getting Big Ten games and luckily connected with the Maroons. To assure more Big Ten games the Blue representatives would have had to be at the conference cage meeting last June.

There was no Lawrence man there and as a consequence the Blues failed to cut in when the schedules were adopted. If Lawrence has a representative at the meeting this June, it probably will be able to get three games if it desires. Efforts have been made to schedule Minnesota, Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin and nearby conference schools. For years Midwest squads have met Big Ten schools on the grid. This season Coe, Cornell and Carleton as well as Carroll met Big Ten grid machines in early games.

The complete Lawrence cage schedule will be announced shortly, several of the contests still being tentative. The five lettermen of last year's state title squad, around which Christoph built his 1927 machine are Capt. Groves and Briggs, guards, Sund, center, Heideman and Clark, forwards. The Midwest conference will hold a meeting at Chicago soon simultaneously with the Big Ten meeting and several games probably can be scheduled.

COLGATE MENACES BROWN'S RECORD

Undeclared and Untied Bears Hit Strong Foe Thursday in Purple Eleven

New York—(P)—The greatest menace to Brown's undefeated, untied march to the top of the eastern football world comes Thursday as a feature of a gridiron card that has five major games.

Colgate is taking to Providence an eleven that shows little on the face of its record to cause Brown anxiety. Penn State plays Pittsburgh. Penn State has scored but one touchdown against Pitt in six years.

Pennsylvania's masters of the hidden ball assault, who have not allowed a touchdown in three games meet a fighting Cornell eleven at Philadelphia.

New York witnesses its last football clash of the season in the meeting of Columbia and Syracuse, which has yet to suffer defeat in a series that dates back to 1901.

CRACK TRAVELING TEAM PLAYS KIMBERLY SQUAD

Kimberly—Olson's Terrible Swedes of Coffeyville, Kan., will furnish the opposition for the K. C. Athletics at the Kimberly Clubhouse on Monday, Dec. 6. The Kansas quint are reputed to be one of the fastest and cleverest traveling squads in the west. Featuring back-hand passing and clever, baffling basketball against the strongest teams in the country, winning 256 games with 53 losses. This team is scheduled to play but three squads in this state. Coming north through Illinois they play at Galesburg, Peoria, Waukegan, Rockford and from Illinois they enter Wisconsin where they engage the Beloit Fairies in a three-game series. From Beloit they come to Kimberly and are scheduled to play at Port Washington on Dec. 7 from where they start their trip east. The Swedes travel throughout the east, finally playing their last games in Cuba, Florida and the southern section of the United States. This team is one of the greatest attractions to ever come to this section of Wisconsin and a real game is in store for local basketball fans.

Cleveland, O.—(P)—Babe Herman, New York, defeated Benny Bass, Philadelphia, (12).

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE

JUDITH MARTIN, a teacher at Pendleton University, is under the disapproval of DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN, because she spends most of her leisure hours with ERIC WATERS and his young radical student friends. MYRA ALDRICH is in love with Eric and jealous of Judith.

DR. PETER DORN, astronomy professor admires Judith and tries to persuade her to make peace with the dean.

The dean's wife is carrying on a secret love affair which Judith discovers on a weekend trip to the city. Judith listens to her story of the dean's tyranny and assures her that she will not gossip.

Two students die of bootleg whisky and the dean indirectly accuses Eric of importing the liquor for sale. Eric enters the conference room and denies the accusation.

That night Eric's mother comes to town and gives a dinner party, to which Eric invites Judith.

At the last moment Eric telephones that his mother insists upon bringing MYRA, whom she has known in her home town. He offers to send WILL WEHRELL, a first brother, after Judith, but she refuses to come to the dinner.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXI

"But Judith," gasped Eric, "how in the world am I going to keep mother away from all the little tales, unless I have you to help me?"

"Oh, so that's it?" snuffed Judith. "Well, Eric, I must confess that it isn't of much importance to me whether you keep her away from them or not. I'm going to hang up now. Goodbye."

Myra ran out into the hall as she passed and followed her into her room. She was wearing a shiny lavender gown and jingling a half dozen bracelets on one arm.

Judith hurried through her bread pudding that night and ran up the steps. He watch said ten minutes of seven. She did not turn on the light in her room, though it was in deep shadow, but drew a chair close to the window and sat down.

The street was lighter and she could see the passersby distinctly.

And when Eric Waters drove his racer under the street's lamp and turned in at the Stedway walk she drew hastily back behind the scrim curtains.

"Oh, Miss Martin," called one of the girls downstairs. Judith did not answer. The call came a second time and a third. At last she heard the girl say, "Sorry, she's not in." There was silence for a moment. Then the voice sounded again.

"Miss Aldrich," Myra's door opened with a bang and Judith heard her run across to the stairs.

"Coming, Eric."

As last the two went down the front walk together and climbed into the car. Judith waited until it had turned the corner before she rose and switched on the light.

The evening was a disturbing one. It was full of the treacherous soft airs that rightfully belong to April, but sometimes appear late in the autumn.

Judith set her room to rights and prepared her papers for grading. But the fragrant breeze whipped the curtain, and the lamp light outside blurred softly golden against the bloom.

At last she rose, seized a large woolen scarf and went downstairs. On the top step outside she seated herself, huddling against the wooden post and pulling her scarf around her.

The street was filled with the sounds of laughter and music from many boarding houses. Somebody down the way was playing "Forgotten," with sobbing, trembling chords that slurred down the scale.

Judith strolled down the walk toward the road and found another seat on a stump in the corner of the yard.

A huge police dog came running up the street and darted at her. Judith jumped and fell off her stump into the wet grass.

"Down, Ponto," shouted a voice that she knew. Dr. Dorn was towering over her. Judith sat up in the grass and giggled.

"Oh, it's you," said the man, giving her a hand. She pulled herself up by it, still nervously giggling.

"I've been wanting to see you," said the professor, "to tell you how sorry I am that I blundered yesterday. For of course, it was a blunder."

Judith brushed a wet leaf off her skirt. "Never mind," she said shak-

ily. "I've had such a fit of blues that I'm glad to see even you. For goodness' sake, talk to me."

"I'll do better than that," said Dr. Dorn. "Run in and get some heavier wrap and I'll take you star-gazing with me. Ponto and I were on our way to the observatory."

Judith hesitated a moment. Then she looked at the sky and found it jet black with crushed brilliants. It was one of the rare nights when the silky way looks milky.

"All right," she answered. "I'll hurry."

She came back with a tweed top-top coat over her arm and they started up the street. "I have some field glasses in my pocket," said the professor. "But we'll use the telescope, too."

Then entered the tract of rolling ground in the center of which the observatory was set. It gleamed white and globular as they approached. Ponto had run off to parts unknown.

"We'll go up on the roof," said Dr. Dorn. "This is a marvelous night to take in the whole heavens. The telescope limits one so."

Judith followed him into the dark building and up the tiny circular staircase. "I didn't turn on the lights here, for they would show through the windows and spoil our clear black and white view," he explained.

And landing on the square roof of the building, behind the telescope dome, they might have been on a watch tower built to command the universe.

Black country rolled away on every side, with deeper black here and there to show where trees clustered.

Dr. Dorn was looking through the glasses. "See," he said, handing them to Judith, "how clear the Coal Sack is tonight."

She nodded. The great black spot upon the Milky Way suggested myths and vague terrors looming beyond.

"Somebody has called those spots 'windows of absolute night,'" she said.

The professor laughed. "A pretty phrase but not very significant. They may be masses of solid dark material, instead of holes looking out on voids that our telescopes cannot reach."

Judith spoke crossly. "I like the pretty phrase. Why do you try to take the pretty things out of science, you scientists?" She turned her face up toward his but the night shut them away from each other.

Dr. Dorn was still. At last he moved and she could feel his coat sleeve brush her arm. "Do you? I wonder. Perhaps we have lost the feeling for pretty things. That is because we look only for truth. And truth is not always pretty."

Judith shrugged. "Then why bother about truth?" she said.

Dr. Dorn put one hand on hers. "I can't talk about science. This night is a setting for—". He pulled abruptly away from her and walked to the edge of the roof. Judith watched him from her place.

He put the glasses at his eyes again.

STREET CAR COMES A-CALLING

Two men were killed and seven others were hurt when a street car left the rails and started up a mountainside on the outskirts of Wheeling, W. Va. If a house hadn't been in the way the car might have made the climb. This shows what the wreck looked like.

"See there is Vega," he said. "Isn't she blue tonight?"

Judith did not trouble to look up. Neither did she answer him. Instead she walked to an elevation near the edge of the roof and sat down. The professor strolled about with the glasses, exclaiming now and then over a constellation.

At last he came back and seated himself beside her. "I still haven't told you how sorry I am about yesterday afternoon. I assure you I spoke only to warn you against the dean—to help you. That was because I wanted to see you succeed."

Judith moved restlessly. "Oh dear, why will people always do things 'for your own good'?" They never really help—just hinder."

He nodded dejectedly. "That's true. I learned it yesterday afternoon. Sometimes I think I'm a hopeless bungler with women—or, in fact with human beings. I've limited myself to my work—and my mother. She is an invalid."

"Oh," said Judith. "I'm sorry."

"It's on her account that I've never been able to think of—many things. I'd like to leave teaching and go into research. But it doesn't pay enough at first."

The professor stood for several minutes on the steps, lighting his pipe. He strolled down the walk and called to Ponto. The police dog came bounding at him from an alley where he had been stalking a giant tomat.

The professor turned and looked back at the house. It was entirely dark. As he looked at it a light flashed on in a window.

Dr. Dorn took the pipe out of his mouth and bent forward. It was the window looking out upon the balcony. A trellis leading down from it offered an easy ascent from the ground. On that trellis, a few weeks before, he had seen a man climbing down.

The dog knocked against the professor's knees. For the first time in Ponto's life his master pushed him away with his foot.

Then, after a moment, with his eyes still on the lighted window, he reached down and laid his hand on the dog's head. Ponto pushed closer to him, whimpering.

(To Be Continued)

Judith learns in the next chapter that she is threatened with dismissal and Dean Brown's wife tries to help her.

MANY CLAIM SIGNALS FROM HOUDINI; WIFE SAYS THEY'RE FALSE

New York — (AP) — Dozens of mediums claim to have received messages from Harry Houdini, but magician's widow says none contains key words agreed upon by her and her husband before his death Oct. 21.

Mrs. Beatrice Houdini revealed Tuesday that her husband made compacts to communicate, if possible, after death with his widow, with Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, and with a friend in Philadelphia whom she will not name. He gave his wife a ten word test message, she says, and no one else knows the secret.

The Scientific American publishes a message from a medium in Attleboro, Mass., who submitted it as a communication from Houdini. Mrs. Houdini says this message, like those others did not have the right words.

Club women of Mississippi have started the industry in that state of making baskets, etc., from the tall long leaf pines there.

Shiocton Man Is Enjoying Life Again Since Dreco Made Him Well

Says He Never Suffers With Indigestion or Shortness of Breath Now and Has More Energy Than in Years.

Hardly a day passes now but what some person tells of the wonderful good Dreco, which is now being so successfully introduced by the Dreco Expert at Schlitz Bros. Drug Store, has done them. Persons suffering from stomach disorders, indigestion, gastritis, damaged livers, sluggish liver, blood impurities, rheumatism, catarrh of the nose, throat and stomach, nerves shattered, poor appetite and the many other symptoms brought on by the vital organs being weakened, come forward stating that Dreco has put new life and energy into their rundown systems.

Read how this fine plant and herb remedy helped Mr. Joseph Tremmell who lives with his parents on a farm at Shiocton, Wis. He says:

"Before taking Dreco I was in a very rundown condition which was caused directly by a severe case of indigestion I believe. After every meal I suffered with agonizing pains in my stomach. Gas bloated me out and pressed upwards till I could hardly get my breath. I had very little appetite and nothing I ate tasted good to me. I always felt drowsy and tired and had no ambition to get out on the farm and work."

"After reading so much of Dreco I started to take it and I want to say right now that this grand remedy has given me a better appetite and more energy than I ever had before and has completely relieved the indigestion and shortness of breath. I now get more enjoyment out of life than ever before and am so happy to find relief I gladly recommend this grand remedy to all."

Mr. H. W. C. Marr Baker, the well-known Expert from the Dreco Laboratories now at Schlitz Bros. Drug Store, is telling scores of people every day how to take Dreco for best results. Go to see him.

The Invisible Foundation

"Modern industry is not built upon a foundation of brick and mortar, stone and steel. Its real foundation is an invisible fabric of ideas"—says J. H. Van Deventer in "Industrial Management."

On this invisible foundation the business of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has been built. The history of the growth of this Company is a history of the development of ideas.

From the beginning, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has realized the importance of this invisible foundation.

It was among the first organizations to establish a research laboratory adequately equipped for scientific investigation and study—a place where ideas might be encouraged and developed and tested.

In this laboratory men of initiative and scientific training have been brought together to work out the problems of petroleum and make this great natural resource of increasing service to mankind.

In the seclusion of this laboratory, Standard Oil Company (Indiana) ideas have originated which have revolutionized the entire industry.

For example, in the research laboratory of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) were developed the first processes for producing gasoline by cracking, which have more than doubled the yield obtained from crude oil by former methods.

These processes were leased to competitors and thus benefited the entire industry and ultimately all the motorists of the country.

Recently a new theory of scientific lubrication has been worked out in the research laboratory of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

This discovery has resulted in the development of a new motor oil which solves many of the lubricating problems that have baffled experts for years. The far reaching importance of this discovery to motorists cannot be overstated.

These are but two examples of revolutionary ideas originated in the laboratory of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) which have been converted into important benefits to every motorist in the Middle West.

Every product of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is the result of careful scientific research backed by experience.

Upon this invisible foundation of ideas and scientific research the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has built the sturdy structure of its vast organization to serve the 30 million people of the Middle West.

MILWAUKEE JUDGE GIVES FINDINGS IN BRIDGE CASE

Little Chute Wins Fight in Federal Court on Canal
Spal Expenses

The village of Little Chute will not be required by the United States government to raise and maintain the drawbridge over the government canal, according to the decision made by P. A. Geiger, Federal Judge, in Milwaukee Tuesday. Whether Outagamie county will meet the expense of the bridge or the government was not decided in the case but was left to be settled by the two parties involved, the judge stated. The village of Little Chute brought suit against the Secretary of War, the attorney general, the district attorney for the United States, in eastern Wisconsin and the county.

In 1921 the secretary of war served notice on the village board to raise and repair the drawbridge crossing the government canal there within three months after the serving of the notice. The village refused on two grounds. First, there was a highway crossing the river at this point prior to the drawing of the government canal and therefore, when the government severed this highway by building the canal, it was obligated to build and maintain the bridge crossing it.

Second, in 1921 Outagamie county made this highway which crosses the river at this point a County trunk highway and that it developed that the United States government was not itself obligated to raise and maintain the bridge, then the county was the party responsible for building it.

When the village refused to raise the bridge, the Secretary of War served notice that the village would be penalized by law, and the action was brought by the village when the government sought to impose these penalties. No notice was served on the county by the secretary of war but the county was made a party to the action.

Testimony of old residents was taken at Little Chute and depositions made. Representatives for the plaintiff were Ryan and Cooper, attorneys, of Appleton, and Moses Hooper, of Oshkosh. The defendant's representatives were L. H. Bancroft, assistant United States district attorney, for the Secretary of War, the Attorney General and the district attorney for eastern Wisconsin, and J. A. Lonsdorf, District Attorney of Outagamie county, for the county.

The bridge now being used needs to be raised and widened to conform with the requirements of a canal for navigation, it is contended.

RABBITS PLENTIFUL, REPORT OF FARMERS

Farmers in the vicinity of Appleton report an over abundance of rabbits this fall and many of them have taken precautions to guard their young fruit trees against destruction. The rabbits eat the bark from the young trees, especially apple trees, and when they girdle the trunk, it dies. Some of the farmers wrap paper about the bottom of the trunk to keep the animals away from the trunk, while others shoot the rabbits, and some times feed mice, manage to reach the unprotected tree trunk and chew off the bark.

MAY MAIL SEEDS AND PLANTS TO NEW ZEALAND

Seeds, plants and bulbs now may be sent through the mails to New Zealand, according to word received at the local post office from the United States Post department. In sending seeds of flowers, vegetables, grass or trees, not including oats, barley, maize, wheat or other grains, a certificate must be signed by the consignee unless the seeds are sent from the states of California or Texas, showing where they were produced.

DENBY ASKED OIL LEASE BE MODIFIED

Naval Reserve No. 1 (Elk Hills) is used during that time?" asked government counsel.

"Where there any applications for lease?"
"Yes."
"But none was granted."
"No."
"You may cross-examine," said Owen J. Roberts, government counsel. "We have nothing to ask," replied Frank J. Hogan, Denby's chief counsel.

READ DENBY LETTER

Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, and Edward L. Doherty, millionaire oil man, are being tried on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government.

Hogan made it a matter of record that the specifications for the Pearl Harbor arrangement were prepared in the navy department not in the interior department.

Roberts read a letter from Edwin Denby, as secretary of the navy, to Fall asking that the Doherty Elk Hills lease be modified to provide for oil storage on the Atlantic coast. Such a provision later was incorporated in the lease. The government attorney also read a letter from Fall to Doherty in July, 1921, thanking him for his patriotic action in surrendering a portion of his lease in Elk Hills, consisting of offset wells. Doherty, executive officer, transferring the oil reserves from the navy to the interior department, was put into evidence along with letters between Fall and Denby in which the former suggested exchange of crude oil for fuel oil and Denby agreed.

SCORES "IMPLICATIONS"

New York (P)—Because of what he regards as "damnable scandalous implications against a president not on earth to defend himself," John A. Stewart, has revealed what he says were conversations with President Harding shortly before his death.

Mr. Stewart says Mr. Harding told him he intended to break with Albert B. Fall, then secretary of the interior, "on all major political matters relating to his office," that he had come to the parting of the ways with older politicians and, with a new conception of the president's duties, intended to defend the people against exploitation.

Mr. Stewart, president of the Republican League of the United States, made his revelations in a speech Tuesday night before the organization's executive committee.

DIED A MARTYR

"President Harding's heart was broken by the ingratitude of his friends," said Mr. Stewart, "and he died a martyr to that friendship." Explaining his reasons for his revelations, Mr. Stewart said:

"There have come from Washington and from some sections of the press and other sources, innuendoes and metaphorical shakings of the head which might serve to cast universal, unjust and damnable scandalous implications against a president not on this earth to defend himself."

Mr. Stewart said he often spent weekends at the White House. Mr. Harding's remarks about Fall were made on one such visit, two weeks before President Harding left for Alaska on a trip that ended in his death in San Francisco in the summer of 1923.

CONDITION OF STREETS GOOD, SAYS HACKWORTHY

In spite of the heavy snowfall of the past week, practically all Appleton streets are in good condition for traffic, according to R. P. Hackworthy, street commissioner, and it has not been necessary to use snow plows. Most of the city street employees are busy removing snow from the street intersections and spreading sand at arterial stop corners to prevent automobiles from skidding as they stop.

Miss H. M. Conn, assistant secretary, left Wednesday for her home at Edgerton where she will spend the Thanksgiving holidays.

COLLEGE FACULTY QUELLS POSSIBLE HOLIDAY STRIKES

Mentors Veto Half-week Vacation; Lawrence Student Body Agrees

Lawrence college students will not have a vacation following Thanksgiving day this year because of the large amount of school work missed in a half week holiday. It was decided at the special meeting of the faculty held Tuesday afternoon. Prof. L. A. Youtz explained the decision at the convocation services Wednesday morning.

Harry Snyder, president of the All-College club, responded in a talk saying that the students would accept the faculty's decree like "good sports."

In other years, Dr. Youtz said, the week's classes ended on Friday, and thus only one day of school was missed by the students after the holiday. Under the schedule adopted this year, six days of classes are held. Closing school on Wednesday and not re-opening until Monday, a half week of classes would be missed. The faculty believed it would not be wise to sanction the loss by granting the vacation petitioned by the students. Forty-eight members of the faculty were present, including Dr. Henry M. Wriston, president. Of these, 41 were against granting the petition, three voted for it, and three did not vote.

For several days, feeling among the students had been growing in intensity against the original decision of the faculty that only on Thanksgiving day, contrary to the practice in former years, would classes be dismissed this year. If the petition was denied, it was said that the students might strike and refuse to attend classes.

The students will abide by the decision of the faculty, Mr. Snyder said, as they realize the reason put forth as very fine. Any feeling of antagonism the students may have felt toward the faculty has gone, the all-college club president believes.

ONEY JOHNSTON POST SPONSORS NAVY FILM

Members of the ticket committee of Oney Johnston post, American Legion, sponsoring the motion picture "Navy in the Navy Now," will meet at 7:30 Wednesday evening at the office of F. F. Wheeler, according to H. L. Plummer, committee chairman. The picture will appear at Fischer's Appleton theatre, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week and the post will be given a part of the proceeds of tickets sold by its members.

Plans for the distribution of tickets to post members will be made at the meeting Wednesday evening. Every one of the 550 members will be asked to sell. Committee members are Mr. Plummer, C. A. Sparling, George Duth George Duth, Joseph Witmer and Harry Sylvester.

An eight-piece Jackie band will play each night with the picture, featuring naval marches such as "Thunder and Jack Tar March." A percentage contest probably will be held between the Army and Navy branches of the local post for the ticket sale.

MANY CHECKS READY

More than 300 checks, ranging in amounts from $2.20 to approximately $4,500, to bring a post-Thanksgiving thrill to businessmen who have transacted affairs with the county were being written at the office of county clerk John E. Hantschel on Wednesday. The checks represent payment of claims allowed at the fall meeting of the county board.

TO ATTEND GAME

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Kurz and daughter, Harriet, will leave Thursday for Chicago where they will attend the Army-Navy football game in that city on Saturday. They also will visit their son, Donald, who is attending West Point academy. Mrs. Kurz will attend a dinner-dance on Friday evening at the Drake hotel in honor of the cadets and midshipmen.

NOT SO FAST

Introducing Dr. Albert A. Michelson, University of Chicago physicist, who gave the National Academy of Sciences something to think about at Philadelphia by announcing his revised computation of the speed of light. It's not true that light's velocity is about 186,182 miles per second, said Dr. Michelson; it goes only 186,173 miles per second.

UNEVEN TONE SEEN AT MARKET OPENING

Selling Breaks Out in Spots, Causing Irregular Appearance Early Today

New York (P)—Constructive interests remained in control of the stock market at the opening of trading Wednesday, although the upward trend of prices was less uniform than in recent sessions. Active buying of specialties such as Worthington Pump & Commercial Solvents B and Electric Refrigeration was coupled with a steady demand for Dupont, Baldwin and other leaders. Some of the oil shares were under selling pressure.

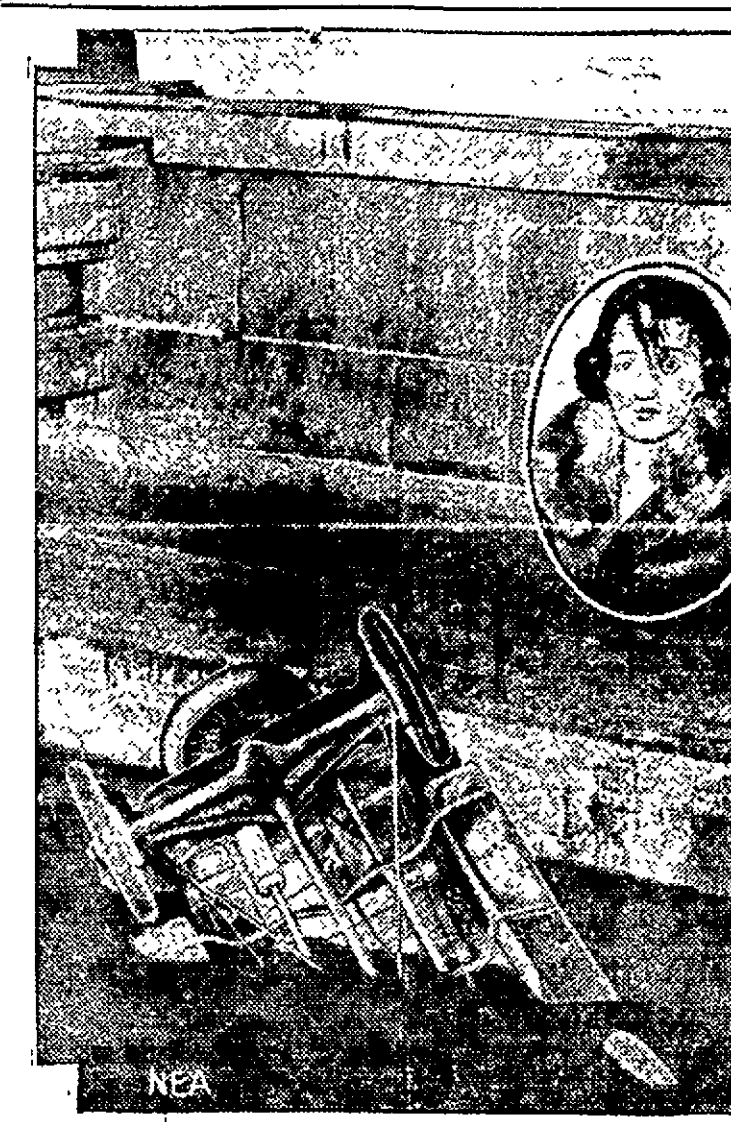

Selling later broke out in spots, giving the market an irregular appearance. Pan-American Petroleum B was hammered down 2 points in reflection of the threatened break with Mexico over the oil and land laws, while pre-holiday profit-taking caused recessions of a point or more in U. S. Steel, General Motors and Woolworth. New York Cannery Company and Preferred both tumbled to new low prices for the year in response to the omission of common dividends. On the other hand, selected buying of specialties carried Texas Gulf Sulphur, Liggett and Myers B and Sterling Products to new highs, and rail shares trended higher under the lead of several leaders. Foreign exchanges opened steady with demand for francs unchanged at 4.84-16 and French francs holding at 3.45 cents.

PRICES AGAIN RISING
Prices were bounding up vigorously around midday under the impetus of a big buying movement in the cottons, equipments and local traction shares. Losses that had been incurred earlier owing to the bear drive against several leaders were being rapidly made up and some specialties began to rise buoyantly. Pullman General Electric and General Motors extended its decline to points before meeting support. The renewal rate on call loans was unchanged at 1 1/2 per cent.

The closing was strong. Total sales approximated 1,600,000 shares.

SURVEYOR INSPECTS DRAINAGE DISTRICT WITH COMMISSION

Expect Complete Survey of Area Will Be Completed
This Winter

A drainage district to comprise parts of town of Kaukauna, town of Freedom and a small acreage in town of Onoda, recently tentatively approved by the Outagamie drainage board, was viewed Tuesday by County Surveyor Lloyd Schumler and members of the county board.

There is nothing to bring about a belief that a complete survey will not be completed this winter and that the district will be approved, was Mr. Schumler's comment.

All told probably approximately 1,400 acres of land will be affected, it was stated. Sections 7-8-15 and 19, town of Kaukauna, 13 and 24 Freedom and 8 of Onoda were included, according to recent announcements.

Roughly speaking 500 acres of the district, or between 60 and 70 per cent of the property involved, was represented on petition for the district filed with the commission.

The next meeting of the officials has not been set but it is expected it will be held soon. Property owners of more than 50 per cent of the land to be drained must sign the petition to be laid before the board before official action is instigated.

TO FIX SENTENCES

Ask Legislature to Modify
Law to Allow Court to Specify Minimum Term

Milwaukee—(P)—Legislation, empowering circuit judges of Wisconsin to fix the minimum sentence, has not been set but it is expected it will be held soon. Property owners of more than 50 per cent of the land to be drained must sign the petition to be laid before the board before official action is instigated.

In a resolution the circuit judges asked the legislature to modify the indeterminate sentence law so that court may fix the minimum sentence of a prisoner, convicted of crime, must serve. The present statute says that the court must fix a minimum term the same number of years as the number of years the defendant is sentenced to serve.

This leaves the court without any discretion, it was argued, and virtually places power of fixing sentence in the hands of the state board of control.

"The complaint charges that these steps were taken as a result of a conspiracy between Mr. Brewster and Corliss Palmer to injure the marital rights and marital status of Mrs. Brewster," declared Mrs. Brewster's counsel.

POWER PUNCHBALL MEN DEFEAT LABORATORIES

Kimberly—Milton Scheure's Punchball team representing the Power department of the Kimberly Clark Company defeated the Laboratory league-leading Laboratory squad when their batting eye proved too much for the Gertrude holders. For the Laboratory George Gertrude behind the bat and VanDinter in the field were the bright lights. Charles Behring was knocked out of the box by the Power men after the third inning and was replaced by Jule Pennings who failed to stop the Power rally until they had outdistanced the Chemists, 34 to 16. ## AVIATION CLUB IS AIM OF STUDENTS

New Organization Will Be Completed Soon at Appleton High School

Seventy-five students at Appleton high school have announced an interest in organizing an aviation club, similar to other organizations being formed in high schools throughout the country. It would be supported by the War department and by the United States government. Faculty sponsors of the club will be Robert Grant of the manual arts department, and Cecile Kermann of the physics department. Robert Shepherd, a senior at the school, is assisting in the organization process.

The aviation club as well as the forensic club which was started a few weeks ago and has about 30 members, has been organized entirely by student initiative. The administration announced. It has been the policy of the school, it was said, to encourage students in starting activities, with the hope that eventually every student in the school would be a member of some club. When his ideal has been accomplished the clubs will meet during the activities period each week, instead of after school hours as they are now organized.

ANDREWS, WHEELER CLASH ON LIQUOR

Opposite Views Held on Necessity for Medicinal Supply in U. S.

Washington, D. C.—(P)—The treasury department, Dept. of the government's prohibition enforcement machinery, and the Anti-Saloon league have different ideas about the necessity for manufacturing legal whiskey. Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant treasury secretary in charge of U. S. law administration, feels that the manufacture of 3,000,000 gallons of whiskey is needed at once to replenish the diminishing medicinal stocks. His superior, Secretary Mellon, takes the same view.

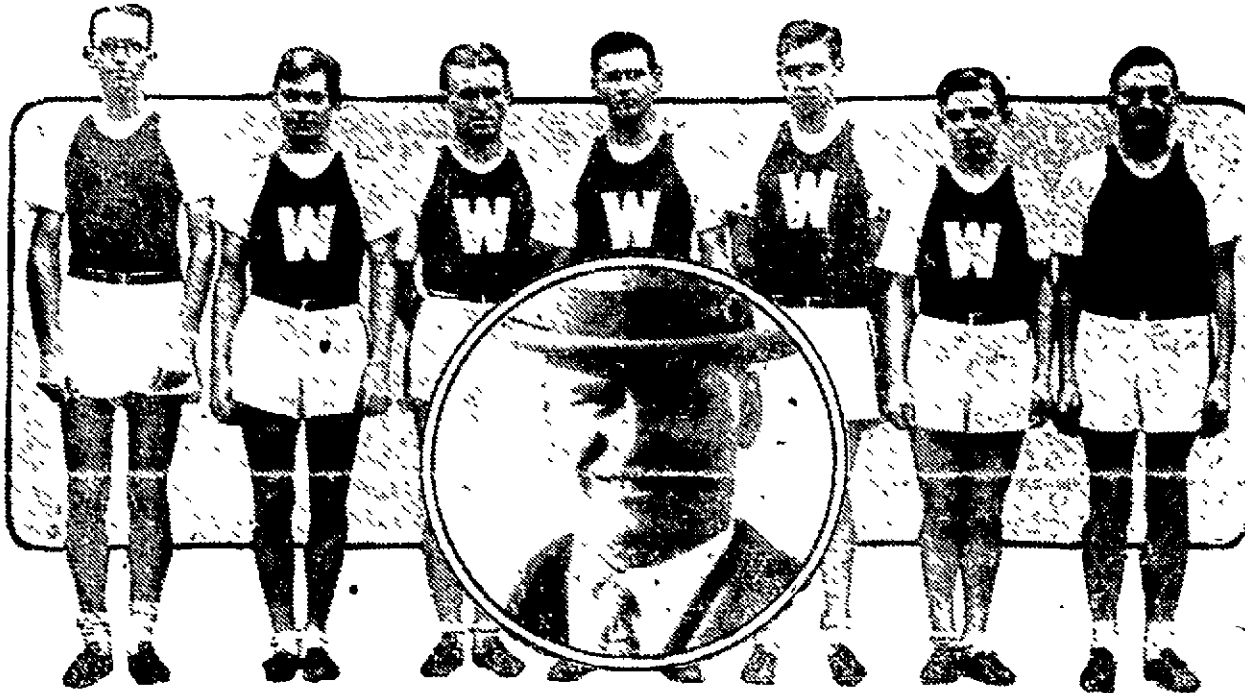

Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the league, differs from the two dry chiefs, contends a shortage of medicinal stock could be replaced temporarily by importation of liquor from abroad, and asserts that a definite program of replacement should be worked out.

Andrews' plan calls for creation by congress of a government supervised private corporation to take over the existing supply of 15,000,000 gallons of medicinal whiskey and begin at once the manufacture of more liquor to replenish this diminishing stock which he estimates will be exhausted in five years.

REHEARSAL CHANGE

GIVE BADGERS THIRD STRAIGHT HARRIER TITLE

Cardinal Harriers Cop Conference Honors For Third Successive Year

Jones' Crack Runners Have Been Undeclared in Any Meet for Two Years

Madison—For the third successive year the University of Wisconsin cross country team has won the Western Conference meet.

The Badger runners have, besides their victories in the title run, been undefeated in dual and quadrangular meets for the past three years. These two marks are unparalleled in Western Conference cross country history. This year's victory was won over the five-mile University of Minnesota course Saturday, Nov. 29.

In the picture Charles Bullamore, of Racine, is at the extreme left. Bullamore, though he did not compete in the conference run at Minneapolis has been a consistent performer on the team all year, and the fact that Western Conference rules allow only six men from each institution to compete kept him from running in the championship event.

Victor J. Chapman, of Madison, is next to Bullamore. Chapman is the outstanding member of the Wisconsin team and was individual champion in 1925. He has lost but one cross country race in his college career. He is also a two-miler and holds the Western Conference indoor two-mile record, his time being 9:26.

John Petaja, of Ahmeek, Mich., is third from the left. Petaja was not enrolled in school last year, but was a member of the 1924 conference championship team, and displayed remarkable form all during the season which has just closed.

Captain George Schutt, of Kendallville, Ind., is next to Petaja. Consistency is Schutt's forte, and though he is not the fastest man on the squad he is always certain to be among the leaders. He was a member of the 1923 championship team.

Lawrence Gumbrecht, of Madison, is third from the right. Luke Schutt he is a consistent rather than a flashy runner. The present season was his second year with a championship team, having been a member of the 1923 team.

John Zola, of Two Rivers, is second from the right. A year ago Zola was unknown and by sheer grit won himself a place on last year's champions. This fall he has become one of the leading members of the cross country team.

John Payne, of Mount Vernon, Ill., is the only member of the regular squad who is a sophomore. Payne has exhibited outstanding form all year and is expected to be one of the mainstays of Wisconsin cross country teams for the next two years.

Coach Tom L. Jones is the inset. He also serves as track coach of the University. Coach Jones has had phenomenal success with cross country teams, his squads having taken the conference title 10 out of the last 19 years.

Other members of the Wisconsin cross country squad this year were: Stanley Zola, Two Rivers; Walter Batz, Milwaukee; Robert Schwenker, Milwaukee; Richard Williamson, of Mexico City, Mexico; Oscar Egge, Marshfield; Lemar Fink, West Allis; Drayn Walter, Milwaukee; Stanley Kahsh, of Indianapolis, Ind., was manager of the team.

WAUPUN BATTLES FOR GRID TITLE

Prison City High Started String of Wins Under Orange Mentor in 1925

Waupun—The undefeated Waupun and Fort Atkinson high school football eleven will meet in a game for the championship of central and southern Wisconsin Thursday at Fort Atkinson. Maquette and Superior will play for the northern Wisconsin title on the same day.

Waupun clinched its second consecutive Wisconsin Little Ten high school conference gridiron title by its 29 to 0 win over Beaver Dam on Armistice day. Fort Atkinson won the Rock River Valley high school conference football championship for the second consecutive year. Both teams have won 18 consecutive games each and have not been defeated since more than two seasons ago, going through the last two seasons without a loss.

Waupun's goal line has not been crossed during the 1925 season nor has the team been scored on in any other manner. Waupun's teamwork has been almost perfect and its interference particularly good. While their team is not very heavy, it is exceptionally fast and in every game played on the present schedule they have emerged victors by a safe margin. The offensive backs, Hass, Kohlman, Miehke and Luck, who earned the title of "The Four Little Horsemen," featured the team's play. Waupun is captained by H. Schultz, left guard. Other stars in the lineup are Zimmerman, right tackle; John Howard and Clover, ends; Marsh, fullback, whose punting has averaged 50 yards per game; Hass, quarterback, who has gained 1,190 yards in seven games; and Luck, right halfback, a consistent line plunger.

Waupun's record for 1925 and 1926:

1925	1926
Waupun 12, Columbus 0.	Waupun 12, Columbus 0.
Waupun 47, Horicon 0.	Waupun 6, Berlin 0.
Waupun 6, Berlin 0.	Waupun 12, Ripon 6.
Waupun 6, Mayville 0.	Waupun 14, Beaver Dam 6.
Waupun 14, Beaver Dam 6.	Waupun 23, Watertown 13.
Waupun 23, Watertown 13.	Total points—Waupun 131, opponents 25.

The 1925 Waupun squad, which won 7 straight games to start the Prison City boys on their two-year victory string was coached by Joseph Shields, present Appleton high school mentor. Coach Shields developed practically every star of the 1926 squad which ran up 221 points to none for its opponents. Appleton high could have met Waupun Thursday rather than Fort Atkinson but because of the weather, title of "The Four Little Horsemen," featured the team's play.

Waupun is captained by H. Schultz, left guard. Other stars in the lineup are Zimmerman, right tackle; John Howard and Clover, ends; Marsh, fullback, whose punting has averaged 50 yards per game; Hass, quarterback, who has gained 1,190 yards in seven games; and Luck, right halfback, a consistent line plunger.

BOSTON U. FINALLY. BREAKS LOSING Jinx

Boston University, after losing five grid games in a row finally broke the jinx by taking Tufts into camp. At that B. U. had all it could do, to win 16 to 7. Yale and Army scored a combined total of 92 points on Boston university.

After the offer was refused. A game between the two teams is probable next year.
